Teachers march

PROCESSION of Twin Falls school teachers moves along a street toward the District 411 administration building this morning. They circled the building during a session of negotiations between representatives of the teachers and the school board.

TF teachers back negotiators

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Carrying signs and placards, more than 100 teachers circled the District 411 school administration building in downtown Twin Falls this morning as tense negotiations with the school board got underway.

The school board negotiating team arrived shortly after 9 a.m. and quietly huddled behind drawn shades in the administration conference room as teachers passed by outside the window.

"Where are they? I didn't even know they were out there," said school board attorney Fred Decker when asked his reaction to the demonstration.

Decker and school board members Ruth Day and Tom Kiley refused to comment on the demonstration or on whether they expected the teachers to strike if their demands were not met.

"We're continuing to negotiate, other than that I don't think we want to have any comment at all," Decker said when asked if the board team would approach negotiations with an eye to preventing a strike.

Outside, the teachers circled and recircled the building carrying placards which had been passed out prior to a march to the administration building from O'Leary Junior High School, where the teachers had massed to form ranks.

Chieftains of "Go Team" went up when the teachers negotiating team made their way through the ranks at 10:02 a.m. About two minutes after the negotiations were scheduled to get underway.

The demonstration was orderly but serious.

About the only kidding took place when teachers gibed one another about missing the fair on Fair Day. There was no disruption of classes because students all along had been scheduled to be let out for the annual day at the fair.

Because of a gag-rule jointly agreed to between the Twin Falls Education Association (TFEA) and the school board negotiating team, many teachers were reluctant to say anything about a strike or the possibility of other action if negotiations broke off.

"No comment," many said tersely. But a few were willing to talk briefly. "Don't you think if it involved your personal rights you'd be willing to talk?" asked Lincoln elementary teacher Judy Boxter.

"I think everything should be done to avoid a strike, that's what negotiations are for," said Gordon Armstrong, also a Lincoln teacher and a past negotiator and president of the TFEA.

Armstrong said he felt the real issue behind the demonstration was neither salaries nor the working condition demands the teachers are making. He said the real issue was "all about a betrayal of trust by the board."

"I have ambivalent feelings of loyalty," Armstrong said. "It involves taking a stand for one's deep convictions."

Asked if he would strike if it came to that, Armstrong said very quietly, "Yes."

While rumors were flying, indications were that a strike would be called only as a last alternative and only after other measures, yet untried, had been taken.

TFEA president LaRon Smith refused to discuss the teachers' plans because of the gag rule overhauling the negotiations.

"I know as president that there are a large number of concerned teachers," he said, "and I know that they'll do everything they can to solve the problem."

Smith refused to comment on what actions might be taken if the negotiations sessions broke off, but rumor had it the teachers might resort to short-term "walkouts" or "joint" takings of sick leave if the board refused to negotiate.

Smith said he was aware the state would require teachers to make up any class time lost through a strike and added that making up missed days "would be something to consider" before the teachers took action.

The demonstration and the crisis in negotiations arose after comments by board member Ruth Day that the teachers would have to honor contracts the school district had already issued. A negotiations agreement had stipulated that the contracts issued last spring would be amended at the conclusion of negotiations.

The teachers were also upset about alleged "bad faith" on the part of the board in apparently changing agreements arrived at in negotiations before the agreements were presented for signature.

While the salary demands the teachers are making have never been formally released, a source close to the school administration said the gross increase being sought would cost the district about $357,000. The teachers compute the figure at $250,000, the source added.

China leader Mao, 82, dies

(Combined wire services)

HONG KONG — Chairman Mao Tse-tung, last of the 20th Century's great revolutionaries, died today at 82.

The New China Central News Agency announced his death at 5 p.m. Hong Kong Time. It said he died at 1:10 a.m. Thursday. The announcement came with what was for the Chinese Communists, surprising speed.

The cause of death was not given, but Mao was commonly supposed to have suffered from Parkinson's disease. Long ill, he had not been seen in public for more than a year.

Pictures of him greeting distinguished visitors earlier this year showed him to be partially paralyzed. His speech was barely coherent.

(Related stories p. 7)

His last meeting with a foreign dignitary was May 27. The visitor was Prime Minister Ali Bhutto of Pakistan.

Mao's death had been expected any day. Even so, it came as a shock to millions to know that the man who reshaped the world's most populous nation was dead at last.

Deaths for the once-great helmsman came 27 years after he stood triumphant before cheering thousands in Peking's Tian An Men Square and declared the Communists masters of all China.

It was almost as if Mao had died in response to the belief among China's superstitious peasants that recent earthquakes were a signal that he had lost his mandate from heaven.

His death came at a time when his glorified revolution has gone sour, leaving the party leadership in disarray amid growing apathy, cynicism, spreading lawlessness and a general erosion of Communist authority.

His passing removed the last barrier to what could be a fratricidal struggle for power between China's leftists, who have invoked Mao's name in pressing their cause, and the moderate pragmatists, who apparently are in control of the party machinery and government.

It left China's destiny in the hands of a man untied at the top — Prime Minister Party First Vice Chairman Hua Kuo-feng, an up-from-the-ranks bureaucrat.

A virtual unknown to most people, Hua took over as prime minister in April in crisis atmosphere after 100,000 people staged a violent anti-Mao demonstration in the heart of Peking.

He succeeded the disgraced Teng Hsiao-ping, who was stripped of all his posts and banished out of office in what was a major victory for the radicals, known to China-watchers as the Shanghai mafia because that city is their greatest stronghold.

No outsider knew for sure where Hua Kuo-feng really stands. But in his brief four-day tenure he seems to have been trying to build himself a power base at the center between the warring radicals and moderates.

The key question, in the aftermath of Mao's death, is whether the struggle for succession can be confined to the top levels of the party or whether it will spill over into the country as a whole.

In the latter case, China as it now exists could disintegrate into warlordism. A more acceptable and hopeful view is that the feuding wings of the party will reconcile their differences in the interest of unity.

This may be a vain hope, for even before Mao died the radicals appeared to be gliding for a showdown. The leftists are strong in the major cities and they seem to be dictating the political themes of the day from Peking. Yet they are not in a commanding position. Aging party leaders including military men hold commanding positions in the provinces and more than 80 per cent of China's 800 million people live in the countryside.

"In many ways" mused a China watcher, "what is happening in China today is a struggle between the old and the young, but eventually the young hold will prevail. But by then they may be old birds."

Mao's passing completed with a few swift strokes the deception by death of the old leadership that has ruled China for more than a quarter of a century.

Prime Minister Chen Yung-kang, Mao's third-hand man, died in January at the age of 76. Marshal Chu Teh, the Communists' grand old warrior, died in July at 92.

Some other old-timers are not expected to last much longer.

Cape Town riots leave 11 dead

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI) — Police battling a rash of rioting and looting in suburbs near Cape Town shot to death 11 persons today.

Police officials said six colored (mixed race) looters were shot and killed in the segregated township of Manenberg, eight miles from this seaport city. Two of the looters were hit while getting a fire to a liquor store.

Lockheed agrees to halt bribes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Lockheed Aircraft Corp. agreed today not to make bribes, kickbacks and other improper payments in exchange for renewal of a federal guarantee of $160 million in loans needed to remain solvent.

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, chairman of the U.S. Emergency Loan Guarantee Board, said repeatedly last fall and winter that the prohibition would be part of any new agreement with Lockheed.

Britain tries to halt seamen's strike

LONDON (UPI) — The government and labor union leaders launched frantic last minute attempts today to head off a threatened seamen's strike which officials said could play havoc with Britain's faltering economy.

Prime Minister James Callaghan met with his cabinet and discussed possible proclamation of a state of emergency enabling use of troops, if necessary, to move vital industrial supplies and foodstuffs.

The general council of the 10 million member Trades Union Congress, which is holding its annual convention at Brighton, met for an hour to study possible mediation efforts.

Jerome man faces murder charge in Wilson death

By BONNIE BAIRD-JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — A 21-year-old Jerome man has been charged with second degree murder in the death last April of Ralph Wilson, 38, Jerome.

Wilson's body was recovered earlier this week from a grave near the Wendell city dump in Gooding County.

Jerome Prosecuting Attorney Eugene Fredericksen said charges were filed late Wednesday afternoon against David Alex McKay, 21, Jerome. He said McKay has been questioned as a suspect in the disappearance of Wilson and "was in custody at the time of his arrest."

McKay was arraigned before Magistrate Court Judge Russell C. Shaul in Jerome and waived his right to an attorney and to a preliminary hearing.

He is being held in the county jail for appearance in Fifth Judicial District Court.

Fredericksen said McKay appeared in court Sept. 2 on a forgery charge.

He was charged with forging the title on an automobile allegedly owned by the late Ralph Wilson.

Again he waived his right to an attorney or a preliminary hearing and is also awaiting appearance in Fifth District Court this charge.

Fredericksen said medical reports received by his office and Jerome County Sheriff Eliza Hall indicate Wilson had been dead since last April and that death was the result of massive skull fractures and head injuries.

He said he cannot comment at this time on reports a cord was found around the victim's neck when the body was exhumed from the makeshift grave.

Fredericksen said Jerome county authorities have had the case under intensive investigation the past five months, but there are no other charges anticipated at this time.

Several suspects have been questioned in the case, the prosecutor said Wednesday.

He said follow-up investigation is continuing in the case.

Wilson was last seen April 2 in Jerome and his disappearance came to the attention of county and city law enforcement officers a short time later when a Jerome bar owner where Wilson had been picking up his mail reported he had failed to call for the mail for a long time.

Although Wilson was not married, he has relatives in the Jerome area. They told officers they, too, had not seen him for some time and a search began for the missing man.

Jerome and Gooding county authorities recovered his body last weekend near the Wendell dumpgrounds.

Officers said at that time they were led to the grave by a suspect in Wilson's disappearance.

Fredericksen said today he could not comment at this time on whether suspect McKay led officers to the grave.

Sheriff's officers said McKay was held in lieu of $100,000 bond on the second-degree murder charge and $2,000 on forgery. He also faces a five year sentence in the state prison on conviction of a drug charge in Jerome county.

'Trek' fans happy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a move that will delight "Star Trek" fans, President Ford has decided to name the orbiting laboratory for the space shuttle program the "Enterprise" — the name of the spaceship in the 1960's TV show.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration had planned the name "Constitution" for the orbiter, which is to be unveiled Sept. 17 at Rockwell International's plant in Palmdale, Calif.

But in a White House ceremony Wednesday Ford said he was naming it "Enterprise" and although he didn't mention the TV show, the White House said numerous letters had come in from "Star Trek" fans suggesting the name.

Ford said he was honoring the Enterprise aircraft carrier of World War II fame.

In the shuttle program, a rocketship capable of carrying seven passengers will fly back and forth between the orbiting laboratory and Earth. NASA plans to launch the orbiter in mid-1979 and have the shuttle operational by mid-1981.

TF crowds head for fair

FILER — Fairgoers landed in twos and threes today when arriving at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds, early this morning for the annual Twin Falls Day.

Twin Falls day traditionally sets the attendance records for the event and this year was no exception. The fair was shooting at a 15,302 figure said Wednesday.

The Wednesday night rodeo attracted 1,375, a big increase over the 1,193 who attended the same night a year ago.

Stores and schools in Twin Falls were scheduled to close this afternoon to allow Twin Falls workers and students an opportunity to inspect the hundreds of exhibits, enjoy the carnival rides and attend the Flying U rodeo which fans and fair board members say is one of the best shows ever put on in the Filer arena.

Today is Polled Hereford day at the fairgrounds with the Junior Polled Hereford Show as well as open classes to be featured. A new department, Exotic Breeds of Cattle, was scheduled to be judged during the afternoon.

Quarter Horse and Appaloosa performance classes were scheduled during the day in the horse arena.

The Open to the World steer show was expected to attract a large number of spectators at 4 p.m.

The 4-H Club members presented demonstrations this morning in agriculture and home economics. A tractor driving contest was in begin at 1 p.m.

Both 4-H and FFA members presented their best projects for the round-robin lifetime and showing events during the afternoon.

Sandra Yoder, Filer, won the Pote Creed Junior Gardener award for the third consecutive year with the most complete display of garden vegetables. The Harbor House Kids of Twin Falls placed second and Susan Thomas, Filer, was third.

About 25 excited students from the Gooding school for the deaf and blind were brought to the fairgrounds in buses Wednesday morning and another, husband was due to come in the afternoon.

The school superintendent said the children wanted to take in the fair and specially wanted to "see and feed the animals in the Children's barnyard."

A petting zoo type of project which is proving very popular with fairgoers.

The home arts building is practically "bursting at the seams" this year. Exhibitors brought in 70 quilts and nearly that many afghans as well as all the other types of sewing and handwork. There is not space to display the beautiful quilts as they should be, superbly made, as they must be folded and hung over racks to make space for the hundreds of items.

Picket signs replace '3 R's'

By United Press International

The "Three R's" gave way to picket signs today as teachers' strikes in 11 states halted or curtailed the education of nearly half a million pupils.
Nearly 21,000 teachers were on strike and tens of thousands of others were working without contracts in the annual autumn shuffle of teacher-school board strikes.
A UPI count showed teachers' strikes today affected at some 436,000 students and about 21,000 teachers.
Pennsylvania was hardest hit, with some 175,000 students affected by walkouts involving 7,500 teachers in 24 districts. The Pennsylvania total was boosted Wednesday by strikes in the Altoona, Reading, Berks and Panther Valley school districts.
The Pennsylvania Education Association said teachers in two other districts were locked out and contracts talks in 122 other districts remained unresolved.
The Philadelphia Roman Catholic archdiocese suspended the opening of classes, scheduled today and Friday because 1,200 lay teachers rejected a proposed three-year contract calling for at least $2,200 in salary increases. The strike affected 30 Catholic high schools in Philadelphia, Chester, Delaware, Bucks and Montgomery counties.
Seattle faced the first teachers' strike in its history. Some 3,800 striking teachers picketed Wednesday — the eve of today's opening of school for the city's 62,000 students. Picketing continued today but school administrators vowed to keep classrooms open.
Strikes by teachers in Jersey City, N.J., and neighboring Bayonne virtually shut down the two school systems. School administrators in both cities planned to seek injunctions today to get the teachers back to school. The strikes affected some 47,500 students and 2,500 teachers.

Wife charged in Ada murder

BOISE (UPI) — Sally Needs, 32, formerly of Payette has been arrested in connection with the murder of her husband, whose decapitated body was found in the foothills between Emmett and Boise.
Ada County Sheriff E. C. "Chuck" Palmer said Wednesday the woman was arrested in Los Angeles by Sheriff's Detective Mike Roberts and would be returned to Boise for trial on a charge of first degree murder.
She is charged with the murder of Ronald Needs, 31, a Payette meat cutter, who was reported missing in Elmore County about a month after the couple married.
Authorities said Mrs. Needs reported her husband while returning from a fishing trip in Twin Falls. The missing person report was filed by his wife at least two days before the body was found.
Palmer said "tentative identification" of the decapitated body was made through lab tests and other means.
The headless, armless, partially severed body was found June 29 just inside the

Carter makes ethnic bid

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Southern Baptist Jimmy Carter is campaigning hard this week among ethnic Catholic voters, a group in which his otherwise widespread support could be narrowed because of his refusal to support a constitutional ban on abortions.

The Democratic presidential nominee, midway through the first week of his fall campaign, arrived in the capital of Ohio Wednesday night following a day which took him from the Polish Hill section of Pittsburgh to a Yugoslavian neighborhood in the Cleveland suburb of Euclid.

Carter scheduled a news conference today and issued a prepared statement saying, if elected, he would support a "sensitive" law to cover most government agencies and tax-exempt entities. It would be aimed at curbing "big government" by shutting down outdated programs unless Congress and the president specifically extend them, Carter said.

Carter told party members in Cleveland Wednesday night he was emphasizing visits to ethnic neighborhoods throughout the week.

Although they have been in localities populated by different nationalities, the stops have all been Catholic areas where Carter stands to lose votes.

At Polish Hill, Carter was shown through the lower middle class area by the Rev. John Jendzura, a parish priest who said he did not agree with Carter on the abortion issue.

Neighborhood leaders said although Carter was popular, his position would hurt him. "The old people will vote against him on it," said Mrs. Helen Wanasowski, a lifetime resident. "I'm against abortion, but I'm for Carter. He talks honest."

Carter said he was personally opposed to abortions. He told the Polish Americans abortions showed failures to prevent unwanted pregnancies and that as president he would improve both family planning and adoption programs.

"If a woman does have an unwanted pregnancy she'll carry the baby to delivery," he said. "If she can't take care of it, let the baby be given life."

In Euclid, Carter was met by residents outside the Slovenian Society building where men were playing ballina, an Eastern European form of lawn bowling.

He won applause when he stated his position on busing, a local issue.

"I'm opposed to busing," as a means to better education and racial integration, he told the crowd. He said he had adopted a voluntary program as governor of Georgia and "I think the children are better off if they can go to schools near their homes."

Estate tax on Hoover file unpaid

© N.Y. Times Service
WASHINGTON — No federal estate tax was paid on a collection of memorandums and correspondence belonging to J. Edgar Hoover, the late director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, that have been characterized by Hoover's longtime secretary as his personal property, a House subcommittee has learned.

The secretary, Helen W. Gandy, has acknowledged that she destroyed the files after Hoover's death on May 2, 1972, but she denied that they contained any official bureau documents.

The subcommittee said the value of the files had not been declared as part of Hoover's personal estate, contrary to an assertion by court appraisers that Miss Gandy had told them the files were bureau property, raised anew the question of whether highly sensitive FBI documents had been taken from Hoover's office by his aides, and destroyed.

Opposes proposal

FORD Motor Co. chairman Henry Ford II said Wednesday he sees no reason for the United Auto Workers to strike his company Tuesday, but he is opposed in principle to a key union contract demand for more paid days off. "You can't pay people for not working and have the economy grow," Ford said. (UPI)

Jobs bill revised

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Humphrey-Hawkins "full employment" bill has been extensively revised by its House sponsors in an attempt to answer critics and bring it closer to the views of Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter.

Rep. Augustus F. Hawkins, D-Calif., outlined the changes Wednesday to the House Education and Labor Committee, which last March approved an earlier version 25-10.

The panel scheduled a meeting today to consider the changes.

Even if approved by the committee, the revised bill faces an uphill fight to get to the House and Senate floors before Congress adjourns for the year in early October.

Congressional leaders have been reluctant to bring it up so late in the session.

The revised version would set a national goal to reduce unemployment among persons aged 20 and over to three percent within four years. The original version applied that goal to everyone 16 and over.

Proponents said the new goal, involving fewer people, could be achieved more easily and with less inflation.

The new bill calls for reducing unemployment among persons aged 16 through 19 "as rapidly as feasible," but sets no specific goal for them.

It calls for holding the inflation rate to no higher than on the date the bill becomes law.

It says first priority in efforts to reduce unemployment would be by stimulating the private economy, to create more jobs.

Pipeline probers charge pressure

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional investigators accused government officials Wednesday of lying and intimidating witnesses who were questioned in a House subcommittee probe of construction irregularities on the Alaska oil pipeline.

The charges were made by subcommittee staff investigators who went to Alaska to look into pipeline problems at the same time as a government study team headed by the party's transportation Secretary John Barium.

The House investigators, headed by Michael R. Barrett, testified at a hearing Wednesday that they were not allowed to see a copy of Barium's report.

They said a copy of a "supplemental report" which Barium gave the Senate Interior Committee last month contained factual misstatements.

The House investigators also accused Interior Department officials of silencing government witnesses they wished to interview.

The investigators for the commerce energy and power subcommittee said Gov. Andrew Rollins, the "authorized officer" of the government's Alaska Pipeline Office in Anchorage, was among those who sought to prevent witnesses from talking openly with them.

Interim Undersecretary Kent Frizzell has denied the allegations, saying Rollins did everything he could to comply with their requests. He said the department withdrew an initial request that lawyers be present when employees were being interviewed.

The House investigators also accused Morris J. Turner, Rollins' representative of being "not truthful" when asked whether government employees were ordered to report in writing when interviewed by them.

Ford pledges US aid for Israel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford pledged today to a gathering of American Jews the United States' commitment to Israel's security and survival and said there will be "no imposed solutions" in the Middle East.

In a prepared address before the B'nai B'rith convention, with campaign overtones, Ford compared his "performance" to Jimmy Carter's "promises."

He said his administration has helped ease the Arab boycott against American firms doing business with Israel and brought "an effective end to open discrimination."

"This morning I want to reiterate my determination to make further progress so that government officials at all levels—and American people will understand that I mean business," Ford said.

The administration has opposed, however, a provision in the pending tax reform bill which would eliminate tax breaks for U.S. companies in Arab countries which discriminate in export transactions.

Ford mentioned Carter, the Democratic presidential nominee, and said "it is still my fervent hope that this campaign will be pursued in keeping with the best American traditions."

"America has no place for those who would set brother against brother, group against group, American against American," he said.

A White House spokesman said Ford wasn't referring to any particular aspect of the campaign.

"When I became President two years ago," Ford said, "I pledged to be President to all the people. I renew that pledge today and support it, not with vague plans and vacillating promises, but with a proven record of performance."

He said he intends to pursue further negotiations in the Middle East to make "further progress."

"The progress made has withstood the dangerous conflict in Lebanon, and I believe it helped to prevent that fragile warfare from spilling over into a wider conflict," he said.

He promised the "closest constant consultation with Israel."

Missile sale block goal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Fifteen House members said Wednesday they would introduce three resolutions in the House to block reported plans by the United States to sell $60 million worth of sophisticated missiles to Saudi Arabia.

Rep. Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y., said he and 14 other House members, including one Republican, were sponsors of the resolutions which would require congressional action within 30 days to halt the sales.

Rosenthal said the group had no knowledge on its own of the sales, but cited "recent published reports" that the Saudis were buying $60 million worth of air-to-air missiles, $50 million worth of surface-to-air missiles and $10 million worth of anti-tank missiles.

The sales, he said, "will inevitably accelerate the Persian Gulf arms race, which already is out of control. The presence of so much lethal weaponry encourages its use."

Rosenthal said, "The Saudis have no need for so many more high-technology weapons. They already have hundreds of the missiles, he said, more than adequate resources to maintain a defense."

"This further accelerates Saudi Arabia's emergence as the arsenal of the Arab world and is another step towards making it a confrontation state with Israel," Rosenthal said. "The sale is also dangerous because it sends a message to other Arab states that they are likely to receive similar weapons." Under the Arms Export Control Act passed earlier this year, Congress can disapprove arms sales if it acts on a resolution of disapproval within 30 days. Three separate resolutions would be introduced to block the Saudi sales.

Pay boost unlikely

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There appears to be no prospect of an increase being voted this year in the federal minimum wage law.

Rep. John Dent, D-Pa., chairman of the House Labor Standards subcommittee, said Tuesday he has decided to cancel a hearing set for this week on legislation that would have raised the minimum wage from $2.30 an hour to $3.

Dent said he decided to shelve the bill because there was little chance that it would be approved by both the House and the Senate before Congress adjourns next month.

All pending legislation will have to start over again in the new Congress next year. Dent said the minimum wage bill will get priority handling by his subcommittee.

Calley endorses blanket amnesty

MACON, Ga. (UPI) — Former Army Lt. William L. Calley, who was convicted of murdering 22 Vietnamese civilians, said today he favors blanket amnesty for those who dodged military service during the Vietnam war.

"I am for blanket amnesty," said Calley in a radio interview (WCRV). "Let me come right out and say that." The former officer, who served about three years of a 10-year prison term for the massacre of civilians at My Lai in 1968, appeared on a one-hour show with host former Macon Mayor Ronnie Thompson.

Calley was asked his views on amnesty and how they compared with Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter who has said he is for pardoning those who evaded the military draft.

"I am an American and you as an American have never been told what the war was all about," he said. "They have never come up with a reason for fighting that war...other than the fact I was following the orders of my commander in chief. Without any more explanation than that I can't come up and say those people were wrong."

Thompson asked why Calley was "picked but to be scapegoat" in the celebrated My Lai case. He was the only officer to be convicted and was originally sentenced to life by a court martial but the term was subsequently reduced to 10 years.

He replied that in earlier investigations, the Army "categorically" denied My Lai took place. "I said earlier, I will go out and fight for you and die for you, but I won't lie for you," he said. "I was a fly in their ointment."

Long trip to port

SINGAPORE (UPI) — A Canadian-owned petroleum tanker which rescued 33 Vietnamese refugees in the South China Sea last week may have to sail for its next port of call with the refugees still aboard.

The W.A. Maritima, a Bermuda-registered vessel owned by Canadian Pacific Lines, brought the refugees to Singapore last weekend.

The tanker rescued the 33 Vietnamese from a 20-foot river boat floundering in the South China Sea off the Vietnamese coast.

Shipping sources said the boat was out of fuel and water when the Maritima stopped to give assistance.

The sources said Singapore had refused the refugees permission to land unless some other country absolutely guaranteed to grant them entry.

The United Nations High Commission for Refugees regional office offered a guarantee of financial support and ultimate resettlement of the refugees but Singapore rejected this guarantee, the sources said.

"Singapore is getting tougher. They want the U.S. or France or Australia or somebody to issue an absolute flat guarantee to take in these refugees or they won't let them off the ship," one source said.

"In the case of the U.S. it takes a minimum of two weeks to run security checks on refugees and determine if they are eligible for entry."

Writer leaves Zurich

ZURICH, Switzerland (UPI) — Soviet writer Alexander Solzhenitsyn has left Switzerland definitively with his wife and four children, Zurich authorities said today.

The departure took place early in August, they said, but was kept secret until today.

According to the daily Zurich newspaper Tages Anzeiger, Solzhenitsyn had received anonymous letters in Russian threatening him and his family. "If he did not stop his anti-Soviet propaganda."

The Nobel Prize-winning author has been on a controversial lecture tour in the United States this summer.

He had been living in exile in Switzerland since February, 1974.

The newspaper said Solzhenitsyn has bought a house in Vermont. Federal police in Bern said the Soviet author had not received police protection during his stay in Switzerland.

Andrus asks use balance

BOISE, UPI — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus called Wednesday for a balance in the use of the state's natural resources and harmony between the forest products industry and the environmentalists. Andrus told the Greater Boise Chamber of Commerce he rejected the notion that "in all cases timber harvesting and environmental concerns are incompatible."

"They are not," he said. "To the contrary, good management of our forests can enhance both the timber values and the environmental values of those areas selected for timber harvesting."

"In management of our natural resources, we need not sacrifice an industry that is vital to the nation, nor sacrifice ecosystems that are the proper inheritance of future generations," he said.

Andrus told the chamber members there was a need for wilderness areas and a need to protect the environment while, at the same time, providing enough timber for harvest to sustain the forest products industry in Idaho.

He said the Board of Forestry Task Force which he created last October was attempting to bring about greater understanding between the forest products industry and environmentalists.

The governor said so far the task force was making progress in writing "a philosophy and guidelines that may help in formation of a public land use policy that can be used by Congress."

"I don't believe this is too ambitious a goal for a small task force in a small state like Idaho," Andrus added. "I believe the task force has a unique opportunity to contribute to an understanding of the problem of public land management and to a solution of this problem."

"I feel strongly that some group, some time, will accomplish what the Idaho Task Force is attempting to do — write a philosophy and guidelines for management of public lands. It is the Idaho Task Force that does this."

Andrus also noted that reforestation has been badly neglected by the Forest Service.

"Much of the blame can be put on inadequate appropriations; and in this respect, unfortunately, some Congressmen from western states have not been as mindful of this need as they should be," he said.

Andrus said he was hopeful there would be a higher priority to appropriations for reforestation of high productivity public lands.

GE to help pay cost of cleanup

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — General Electric Co. today agreed to pay $2 million toward the cost of eliminating a toxic chemical from the Hudson River and $1 million for research on eliminating the pollution problem, the state Department of Environmental Conservation announced.

The agreement brought resolution to a lengthy dispute involving General Electric's dumping of chemical PCBs—or polychlorinated biphenyls—into the Hudson River.

The state will also set aside $3 million to help remove the chemical from the Hudson waterway.

The agreement placed no legal blame on the company for the pollution.

The Environmental Conservation Department had originally sought as much as $7 million in penalty fines and cleanup funds from the company.

General Electric agreed to reduce its discharge of PCBs from facilities at Hudson Falls and Fort Edward from the present level of less than one pound per day and to immediately launch construction of a $3.5 million facility to cut the discharges to an average of one gram per day. That facility will be completed by next April.

The company also announced plans to discontinue the use of PCB compounds in capacitor manufacturing by next July.

The agreement was announced at a news conference attended by Gov. Hugh L. Carey, Environmental Conservation Commissioner Peter A. Berle and GE officials at the department's Albany office.

Carey, in a statement, labeled the agreement "an excellent example of ways that industry and the state can work together."

Flood toll now 135

LOVELAND, Colo. (UPI) — Larimer County authorities said cleanup crews found the body of a man Tuesday in debris in the Big Thompson Canyon, bringing the toll of known dead in a July 31 flash flood to 135.

Officials tentatively have identified the man, but withheld the name until the identity can be confirmed.

China's Mao left his mark

Mao, the shadowy "great helmsman" of Communist China, is dead. Perhaps more than any of the postwar leaders, Mao's personal mark, for good or ill, has been left on the world. By zealous adherence to his notion of continuing revolution and his firm belief that China should be the center of the civilized world, he engineered the most thorough social upheaval in history. He took a visibly demoralized, prostrate nation rife with appalling poverty and governmental corruption and shaped it into a self-confident nation of 800 million whose success has managed to feed its own people.

In the process he was willing to use any means, no matter how outrageous or cruel, to reach his goal of a strong, independent China seething with the social energy he believed comes from continual revolutionary ferment.

Unlike Marx's brand of Communist theory, Mao did not believe revolution would come from the urban working class. Instead, he placed his bets with the rural peasants of China.

His bets paid off when he was able to build on his rapidly growing rural base to topple the urban government of Chiang and seize control of the mainland in 1949.

Once in command, Mao discovered it was even harder to govern than to gain power. His nearly three decades in power are marked by many back ward steps and enormous failures of leadership.

At the outset of his rule, Mao moved decisively to reorganize the social structure into a commune system. The effort was notably unsuccessful, and eventually most of Mao's domestic power was stripped from him by his more pragmatic and bureaucratic comrades. Unlike other dictators, Mao had difficulty making the trains run on time.

Then in 1957 Mao struck back with what became known as the Cultural Revolution. He simply bypassed the party structure by unleashing the feared Red Guards, youngsters fired with revolutionary zeal who had little other purpose but to root out any entrenched power base.

Only the army was spared the Red Guard purges which shook the country for three years.

In the end, Mao had to resort to the army to curb the Red Guard and reestablish a semblance of normalcy.

Two key aspects of Mao's ideology are evident in this episode. First, he believed in continual revolution in which the governmental apparatus itself is in constant turmoil. Something of a populist who feared big government's big bureaucracies, he believed these should be overturned periodically to reinstate proper revolutionary fervor, at any cost.

The second key to Mao's thinking is evident in his reliance on the Chinese army. It is best described by his famous quotation, "Political power grows out of the barrel of a gun."

He used ideology as far as it would carry him, then used the army.

In time he reached an uneasy truce with the "moderates" and the bureaucrats, such as former Premier Chou. That compromise did make the trains begin to run on time and the nation's rice production begin to grow as fast as the Chinese population.

Mao was deathly afraid of the outside world, particularly his neighbors, the Russians.

There was a time when it appeared China and Russia would be at war as tensions mounted and troops massed along the two nations' common border.

It has been reported that the United States was the only thing which stopped the war. High Russian officials reportedly asked the United States if it would remain neutral if the Soviet Union were to launch an atomic attack on China to destroy its growing nuclear weapons capability.

The United States reportedly gave a firm no, suggesting the Yanks might intercede on the side of China.

Shortly after this reported exchange, China began playing ping pong with the Americans and Kissinger engineered the famous Nixon trip to China which brought China partway out of its isolation.

But Mao was not one to place his bets on only one horse. He also began building an intercontinental ballistic missile capable of carrying huge thermonuclear warheads 8,000 miles. In other words, those missiles were designed for use against the United States, the only probable Chinese enemy so far away.

At the same time, Mao sent his people underground, digging the world's most complete shelter system designed to protect most of the Chinese population from nuclear war.

He not only expected nuclear war, but expected to win.

Madness? Or sanity? Who can say?

His was the kind of life which leaves the world feeling. He changed the world as we know it. His influence, sure to remain long after his death, may still change our world more than we expect.

It may be fair to say that whatever happens, it will be partly Mao's doing.

Snake 'blooms' in brown streaks

Ever glance into the Snake River Canyon and notice brown streaks in the water?

No, the Jolly Green Giant didn't spill his coffee in the river.

And they aren't oil slicks you might find on the water in large seeps.

The river is simply blooming.

Algal bloom, the experts call it. It happens every summer when the water is shut off at Milner Dam for irrigation purposes.

Algae are small plants about half the size of a pinhead. The ones that cause the brown streaks in the Snake River happen to be the dinoflagellates equipped with two swim fins called flagella.

They are small brown members of the class dinophyceae and are probably of the genus peridinium, according to Alex Schaefer and Gene Halston of the Department of Health and Welfare.

It takes billions of them to streak the water here and they won't grow that prolifically without the right conditions.

But the human race has a warm spot in its collective heart and has magnanimously created conditions conducive to feeding large populations of the small swimming plants.

Even clean lake water harbors small populations of algae, the soldiers in the eutrophication army which is gradually filling lake and stream beds everywhere.

But clean water in high mountain lakes or in undisturbed rivers is in a natural balance and does not contain enough food for the small algae to create a population explosion as they have managed to do in the Snake River.

Enter mankind, stage right. He is having his own population explosion along the banks of the stream and his efforts to feed his numbers have

And likewise, food processing plants, although many of them have cleaned up their effluent remarkably in recent years, deposit some nitrogen and phosphorus into the river, too.

Finally, human waste, even if it passes through secondary treatment facilities such as the new one in Twin Falls, carries the same organic compounds which algae love to eat.

Mix the slow-flow of the river with hot sunny weather and plenty of fertilizer dissolved in the water and, bingo, a bumper crop of tiny plants paddling around en masse.

In the swiftly flowing waters near Buhl, the myriads of tiny plants are dispersed and the water is only a shade or two murkier. But in still waters below Shoshone Falls, the dinoflagellates congregate in chocolate stains near the surface of the water.

But don't be alarmed. The only drawback is an aesthetle one. Unless, of course, you happen to think streaks in the river are beautiful.

The masses of algae do no harm, say the experts, because the water is moving—just enough to wash them down stream and keep the dead ones from decaying on the bottom of the river and using up all the oxygen which the fish breathe.

They are only a "secondary" form of pollution, say the experts. The real problem is the invisible nutrients dissolved in the water upon which the algae thrive.

All we have to do to clean up the brown algae is to cut off their food supply by initiating tertiary treatment of our sewage and by being more judicious in our application of fertilizer to our fields and more careful about how much water runs off into the river from fields and processing plants.

Residents of Lake Tahoe did it. The waste they pour into the crystal blue lake is just as clean as it was before it was flushed down the drain and Tahoe's waters are regaining their natural beauty.

In Twin Falls, however, the sewage treatment plant is slated for tertiary treatment, but the process has yet to materialize.

Soap suds and all go into the river.

However, CSI botany professor Rick Snyder says he would still eat fish caught in the Snake River.

But as long as the algae thrives, why not take advantage of it?

Some algae, though not particularly the Snake River brand, has commercial uses.

But perhaps the brown stuff floating in the Snake could, as some other kinds of algae are, be used in baked goods.

Anyone for brown bread?
(Editor's note: Ken Hodge is a staff writer for the Times-News.)

created irrigated farmland and food processing plants.

And the wastes from his municipalities are treated primarily, at best secondarily, and then spilled back into the river.

Irrigation return flow, the water that runs off farm fields, sometimes leeches nutrients from the soil in the form of nitrogen and phosphorus. Then the run-off flows back into the river laden with "food" for the algae.

How about dual supervision of foreign policy?

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, who surely knows more about the subject than anyone else, believes it would be both wiser and more efficient for the U.S. government to have two cabinet officers jointly charged with supervision of the President's foreign policy.

Several times in the past I have written of this idea, which was originally pondered by Harry Truman, although he never initiated any action on it. The proposal is that the secretary of state should continue his function as No. 1 in the cabinet, keeper of the Great Seal and coordinator of policy abroad as well as related consultations with Congress.

At the same time, however, it is suggested that there should be a secretary for foreign affairs, of similar full cabinet rank, who would travel overseas for high-level negotiations and international conferences. Recently I asked Jimmy Carter for his opinion of this. He opposed it, and thought a strong chief executive could operate effectively with a strong secretary of state.

However, when I subsequently put the question to Kissinger here he replied: "You can quote me as saying I am sympathetic to the idea."

And why not? Kissinger has traveled more than any American official during our two centuries of national history. He has discovered, at the cost of enormous effort and much fatigue, that it is not only difficult to run affairs of "state," while fitting between continents trying to put out fires. Moreover, it is impossible to be in two places at once—even if the secretary were given a supersome Concorde.

Whether Kissinger is finished with his public career, as most people assume, depends first of all on the elections for Carter would no more want him as secretary of state in a Democratic administration than Kissinger would covet the job. And if Ford outlives the political softsoyars and remains in the White House it is probable the present secretary would remain.

Obviously it is most taxing to be on a flying trapeze for eight years, especially while dodging brickbats. No doubt Kissinger would prefer to start another and private career. On the other hand, were he re-elected President Ford to urge that he remain in "the national interest" it would be hard for him to close the door on such a possibility.

One thing is certain: he will stay in office until the January inauguration and would never dream of resigning during the campaign. He managed to keep his cool both when Ford of the factually censored use of the word "detente" for the last six months (although continuing to pursue that policy) and when the President accepted a Ronald Reagan plank seeking to wound Ford during the Republican convention, rather than risk losing the nomination.

As far as I can ascertain, foreign policy architects of both parties regard platform planks that deal with this subject as neither binding nor of great consequence. Few major differences concerning U.S. goals appear among currently leading contenders to succeed Kissinger: George Ball, Cyrus Vance and Zbigniew Brzezinski among Democrats; Nelson Rockefeller, John Connally, Elliot Richardson and George Bush among Republicans.

"But even if Kissinger returns to private life next year, he must continue the immensely active pace he has set himself until his actual departure. After Nov. 2 certain diplomatic issues, temporarily paralyzed by the election campaign, will revive: Panama Canal negotiations, SALT talks, Middle East explorations, regularization of relations with Peking.

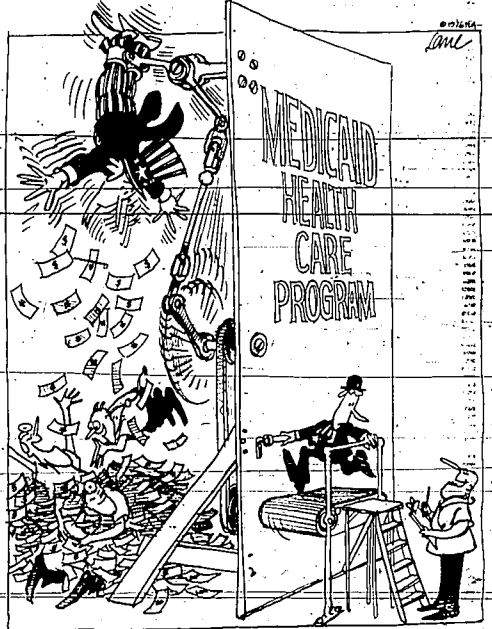

Moreover, the present secretary of state is undertaking more 1976 voyages of discovery. The first is another meeting with South Africa's Prime Minister Vorster in Zurich, then conceivably a subsequent trip to Southern Africa; the second might be a quick flight to Manila to consult Philippines President Marcos, should U.S. base negotiations there run into serious trouble.

Thus, whatever happens, Kissinger is likely to remain airborne as well as in the thick of things during the rest of 1978. And on the whole, his closest associate looks back over the past eight years and sees the period as one of successful diplomacy: Middle East, China, SALT, and, despite ups and downs, good present relations with Japanese and West European leaders.

The most glaring failure has been on Greece and Turkey; the entire domain of Aegean affairs. That problem is bound to remain thorny for the next secretary of state—even if, by some remote chance, he should happen to be named Kissinger.

"It's the most important test of all."

Controversy awaits US court

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court will take little time to reach one of the most significant controversies of its new term.

After being in session only one hour on Oct. 1, the justices will consider a request that they overturn the famous "Miranda" decision, now 10 years old.

That decision requires police to warn a suspect before they question him, about his constitutional rights—including his right to remain silent.

An Iowa case testing the court's present attitude involves a murder conviction obtained by the United States Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit, because the suspect involved had been questioned by a police detective even after the suspect had said he wanted to talk first to his lawyer.

Here are a few of Chairman Mao's quotations

Thursday, September 9 1976 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho 7

By United Press International
Few people in history have been quoted as frequently and on such a wide range of subjects as Mao Tse-tung.

The "Quotations of Chairman Mao" became famous as the little red book printed by the hundreds of millions and "waved constantly during the tumultuous days of the Cultural Revolution. And Mao even had a quote about that: "What nonsense. What a nuisance".

"Some of the more famous and little known quotes from the Chairman:
On revolution—"A revolution is not a dinner party, or writing an essay, or painting a picture, or doing embroidery; it cannot be so refined, so leisurely and gentle, so temperate, kind, courteous, restrained and magnanimous. A revolution is an insurrection, an act of violence by which one class overthrows another."

On War—"War, this monster of mutual slaughter among men, will be finally eliminated by the progress of human society, and in the not too distant future too. But there is only one way to eliminate it and that is to oppose war with war."

On weapons—"Weapons are an important factor in war, but not the decisive factor: it is people, not things, that are decisive. The contest of strength is not only a contest of military and economic power, but also a contest of human power and morale. Military and economic power is necessarily wielded by people."

On nuclear war—"Not very many people were killed in the two world wars. 10 million in the first and 20 million in the second, but we had 40 million killed in one war. We have just experienced in atomic war. So, how many will be killed cannot be known. The best outcome may be that only a small number of people survive and the second best may be only one-third. When 900 million are left out of 2.3 billion, several five-year plans can be developed for the total elimination of capitalism and for permanent peace. It is not a bad thing."

On Peace—"To achieve a lasting world peace, we must further develop our friendship and co-operation with the fraternal countries in the socialist camp and strengthen our solidarity with all peace-loving countries. We must endeavor to establish normal diplomatic relations on the basis of mutual respect for territorial integrity and sovereignty and of equality and mutual benefit, with all countries willing to live together with us in peace."

On power—"Every Communist must grasp the truth. 'Political power grows out of the barrel of a gun'."

On paper tigers—"I have said that all the reportedly powerful reactionaries are merely paper tigers. Was not Hitler a paper tiger? Was Hitler not overthrown? I also said that the tsar of Russia, the emperor of China and Japanese imperialism were all paper tigers. As we know, they were all overthrown. U.S. imperialism has not yet been overthrown and it has the atom bomb. I believe it also will be overthrown. It, too, is a paper tiger."

On the army in politics—"Our principle is that the party commands the gun, and the gun must never be allowed to command the party."

On collective leadership—"Learn to 'play the piano'. In playing the piano, all 10 fingers are in motion; it won't do to move some fingers only and not others. But if all 10 fingers press down at once, there is no melody. To produce good music 10 fingers must move rhythmically and in coordination. A party committee should keep a firm grasp on its central task and at the same time, around the central task, it should unfold its work in other fields."

On the masses—"The people, and the people alone, are the motive force in the making of world history. The masses have boundless creative power."

Flier off to US

TOKYO (UPI)—The Soviet pilot who defected to Japan in a top secret jet leaves for the United States today to seek political asylum.
Government sources said the plane, a highly sophisticated MIG-25 fighter, probably will be returned to the Soviet Union in about a month.
Police sources said the pilot, Viktor Ivanovich Belenko, 29, was interviewed by U.S. embassy officers Wednesday.

Israelis stand fast

© Chicago Daily News
JERUSALEM—Israel is standing pat on its refusal to allow American oil barges to work for Egyptian oil to cross the cease-fire line in the Gulf of Suez.
A State Department protest relayed here by Ambassador Simcha Dinitz will go unanswered, sources said.
In the latest incident since the U.S.-Israeli dispute broke out 11 days ago, an American barge was ordered by a patrol boat to return to the Egyptian side of the gulf.

Mao favored line, not single successor

By United Press International
For years before he died, Mao Tse-tung talked frequently about successors.

He never spoke in the singular. His concern was not about a successor to an individual. It was about training successors to the revolution.

Such of his followers over the last years of his life were devoted to this single-minded pursuit.

In one speech to his colleagues more than a dozen years before he died, Mao spoke at length about the need "to prepare for the future and to bring up successors."

"Successors must be Marxist-Leninists. They must serve the interests of the majority of the people. They must unite the majority, they must display the democratic style, and they must conduct self-criticism."

"You must not always think that you alone will do and that everything done by others is no good, as if without you in the world, the earth would not turn and there would be no party."

Mao, of course, was talking more about himself than anyone else at this stage of his remarks. He was telling them to think more in terms of a line of successors who would perpetuate his policies rather than a strong individual to specifically fill his shoes.

"Do you think that with the death of butcher Chang one would have to eat pork with bristles on it? There is no need to fear the death of anyone. Whose death would be a greater loss?"

Nobody's, Mao indicated.

"How can the death of a single person be such a tremendous loss? There is no such thing. Man always must die. We must be prepared at all times to leave our work posts and we must be ready with successors at all times."

Although Mao initiated the action in the spring of 1976 that made Hua Kuo-feng his heir apparent as chairman of the Chinese Communist party, Mao's main concern was with the top of the party hierarchy as a whole—the political bureau (poliburo).

Mao sought a balance of power between the factions that could be maintained after his death. Mao repeatedly expressed his concern about the possibility of one faction becoming so dominant it would swing the party to the extreme right (right deviationists or

He spoke less about it, but another major concern of Mao in his last years was that hard core military men might seize power. He set forth his policy on this in 1958 and never deviated from it.

"Our principle is that the party commands the gun, and the gun must never be allowed to command the party."

The party's constitutional process has seldom applied when selecting new leaders, but if it should be followed now, here's the apparent line of succession:

First in line is Hua Kuo-feng, a Mao protégé who rose to prominence in the Cultural Revolution, and was named premier (succeeding Chou En-lai) and first vice chairman of the party at Mao's behest in April 1976.

Since there was no formal ranking of the vice chairmen prior to Hua's promotion, it can be assumed that Mao wanted Hua designated as No. 2 man.

Wang Hung-wen, the youngest member of the politburo, is next in line in the informal "standing" of the hierarchy. After him comes Yeh Chien-ying, a veteran of the "Long March"—and a powerful military figure.

Below the vice chairman level, the most serious contenders for the party chairmanship if constitutional processes are bypassed and a power struggle ensues are Chang Ching-chen (Ching Ching, Mao's widow), Yao Wen-yuan, Chen Bo-jen, Tsu Shih-yu and Chi Teng-kuei.

Madame Mao is the most prominent member of the party's so-called radical faction. She has played a key role in China's politics since she emerged in the forefront of the radical elements during the Cultural Revolution.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI)—Cornelia Wallace, the 37-year-old wife of Gov. George C. Wallace, begged her husband's bedroom telephone, the crippled governor told newsmen Wednesday.

"It was a purely domestic matter," Wallace said. "There were no politics involved at all. No one has been hurt, no one has been harmed."

There have been reports of marital difficulties between the defeated presidential candidate and his wife. Wallace said he would be happy to see her. The Wallaces are scheduled to host a reception for Rosalynn Carter, the wife of Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter, late today and aides said both will be present.

Wallace said the tapes made of his private telephone calls were destroyed after they were discovered. Sources told UPI the tapes were placed on the governor's telephone last September and were not discovered until early last month.

The 57-year-old governor refused to divulge details of the "domestic matter" thumbed to the taping. Mrs. Wallace was not at the news conference.

Wallace married Cornelia on Jan. 4, 1971, several days before he was inaugurated for a second term as governor. She had been divorced just months before from her first husband and had three children.

The telephone Wallace said was tapped was in his bedroom, which he did not share with Mrs. Wallace. Wallace undergoes physical therapy at the mansion each morning and uses the phone regularly to conduct state business.

Mrs. Wallace has said she is thinking of running for governor in 1978, following in the footsteps of Wallace's first wife, Lurleen, who was elected in 1966 and died of cancer two years later.

"Wallace said he did not expect she would run for governor, but added, "If she does, I will be for her as strong as I was for my first wife."

"There ain't any questions for you to ask," Wallace said, cutting off the hastily-called news conference when reporters began asking questions. "If you folks in the press would leave us alone in our domestic matters, we'll solve it a lot quicker."

"Being in politics is very difficult," Wallace said as he began the conference, called 21 hours after the first public reports of the tap. "Of course, it's been more difficult since I was shot in 1972."

"I appreciate very much what she (Mrs. Wallace) did for me" after the shooting, which left him confined to a wheelchair. He said her support played a major role in his recovery.

A former member of the aquatic ballet at Cypress Gardens in Florida, Mrs. Wallace has led an active life as first lady, driving the pace car for races at Talladega Motor Speedway and riding in the navigator's seat in an Alabama National Guard Phantom jet.

Privately, she has sometimes complained that Wallace ignored her, concentrating more on politicians and reporters.

John Hancock of VIPs collected for Bicentennial

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—There have been red, white and blue "milestones, homes, cakes, party favors, dance costumes, vases, sideboards, shirts, hats and tennis shoes this year to help Americans celebrate her 200th birthday."

Pete Robinson has come up with his own idea.

Starting last April, the Brooklyn, N.Y., native got behind the wheel of his old bus decorated with a "Crazy Pete" sign and embarked upon an ambitious mission to get autographs.

Not just any autographs, mind you, but the John Hancock of all 50 governors and the mayors of the cities where state capitals are located.

As soon as the red, white and blue "Happy Birthday, America" book is completed, Robinson plans to turn it over to the Smithsonian Institution.

With his dog Dumbo at his side, Robinson is driving across the nation, taking odd jobs where possible to buy his gas and food.

"I tried a travel plan, but it didn't work out," he said. "So I just go now. It's a self-supporting tour. I work when I travel."

In times of low income, Robinson has been known to resort to flea markets.

"That's my main source of income," he noted. "I'll go to 'em' dumps and scavenge broken bicycles or anything, you'd be surprised what people will buy."

Robinson won't be able to drive into Alaska or Hawaii, but will have to settle for air travel to complete his goal.

Besides his book of governors and mayors, he also maintains an autograph book containing signatures of the men in the street he meets on his tour.

"I wanted to see something done for the Bicentennial," the 43-year-old New Yorker explained. "This volume will go down in history. It has to be finished by the end of the Bicentennial."

Robinson made West Virginia his 23rd stop and ran into only one hitch in a state that calls itself "almost Heaven."

"The first thing I did when I got here was go to the Capitol, but I wasted an hour trying to find a place to park," he said.

Strange cravings lead to surgery

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI)—A nurse who began eating paper as a school girl wound up on a diet of 10 tissues and a half page of the Melbourne Sun newspaper every day, the current issue of the Medical Journal of Australia reports.

The unidentified woman developed the strange craving at the age of 12—and by 15 could not beat the habit, the journal said. She now is 22.

Dr. Peter Graham, of Columbia, in southeastern Australia, described it as "a most unusual case."

"While at school, the patient used to consume small quantities of blotting paper and sheets of exercise books," Graham said in the journal.

"At the age of 17, she worked in an office where she found that blotting paper and the petty cash vouchers best suited her palate. During her nursing training—from 18 years old to 21—she mostly refrained from indulging her craving. She was a little ashamed of it and regarded it as unprofessional.

"When she married she again took up the habit and, despite the strong disapproval of her husband, it persisted until she had to have a laparotomy (an operation in which the abdominal cavity is opened)," he wrote.

"Her usual diet at the time of surgery was five to 10 tissues and a half page of the Melbourne Sun each day. And, for variety, she ate an occasional exercise book sheet."

Graham said surgery was necessary because she had anemia caused by inadequate food intake. The nutritional deprivation was accompanied by constipation and pelvic infection.

After the operation, she had to be given three blood transfusions and is now completely recovered, Graham reported.

RCA officials fear opinions

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—Officials at RCA Records are worried about public reaction to country singer Bobby Bare's new single, "Dropkick Me Jesus Through the Goal Posts of Heaven."

"We're sweating this one," said RCA's Ed Mascone Wednesday. "There's no telling what reaction it will bring. But the song's too good not to release."

"I think it's a great song," said Bare, currently touring New England. "I don't feel it's offensive in any way. It's a straight song and I recorded it straight."

Barnard speaks

GAINEVILLE, Fla. (UPI)—Heart transplant pioneer Dr. Christiaan Barnard defended his country's racial policies Wednesday and predicted that, given adequate time, racial discrimination will be a "disappearing phase" in South Africa.

Barnard, who is attending a medical symposium, said he disapproves of racial discrimination, "but it is a disappearing phase, slower perhaps in our country than elsewhere, but a disappearing phase."

"We are a bit scared to give a little or to give anything at all because the outside world is not asking us to give a little but to give everything" to the black majority in South Africa, he said.

Barnard compared South Africa's blacks with America's Indians. "Say for example that you were out-numbered four to one... would you give them majority rule? If the answer is yes, I will say that I am wrong."

Daniels picked

CHICAGO (UPI)—Derick J. Daniels has been named president and chief operating officer of Playboy Enterprises Inc., Hugh Hefner's $2 billion publishing and entertainment empire.

Making the announcement Wednesday, Hefner said he will remain chairman and chief executive officer and will continue to set policy for the enterprise.

Daniels, 47, has served as vice president of Knight-Ridder Newspapers and as president of the Knight News Services Inc.

Grasso on taxes

OXFORD, Conn. (UPI)—Gov. Ella T. Grasso says she wants to improve the tax structure to help make Connecticut business and industry more competitive with companies in other states.

"Further business tax cuts cannot be promised at this time," she said. "But you may be sure that if existing taxes continue to produce increasing revenues, and if controlled spending can be maintained, the cuts will be made."

Mrs. Grasso made the remarks Wednesday in a speech to the Smaller Manufacturers Association of the Greater Waterbury Area.

Charge dropped

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Actor Ryan O'Neal no longer faces prosecution for possession of marijuana.

O'Neal was arrested Jan. 7 by officers who arrived at his home with a search warrant and found five ounces of marijuana in a jar in his bedroom.

At the recommendation of a probation officer, a Superior Court Judge Wednesday dismissed the charge because O'Neal completed a six-month drug education program, the common procedure for first offenders arrested on minor charges.

Fred says no

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI)—Fred Astaire turned down an invitation to appear at the World Professional Skateboard Championships, perhaps because of the origin of the invitation, or perhaps because he's given up the sport.

Astaire was invited to the championships, held last weekend, because he had been rated recently as a better skateboarder.

The 77-year-old dancer, famed for his grace, fell off his board last month and broke his wrist.

Aerialist jailed

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—Aerialist Steve McPeak, 30, who has performed several high wire walks over public places, was committed to the U.S. marshal's office Wednesday to serve a 10-day jail term.

McPeak was sentenced by a federal judge in Sacramento for disobeying a park ranger's order to come down from a cable over Yosemite Falls in July. McPeak earlier was fined $50 for perching several days on wires over Hoover Dam 700 feet above the Colorado River.

He said he hoped the publicity would get him a job.

Corn, soybean crops dip

KANSAS CITY—Lower corn and soybean production have been estimated by the latest Conard Leslie survey.
Based on Sept. 1 indications, the survey estimates corn production at 5.98 billion bushels, compared with a U.S. Department of Agriculture estimate on Aug. 1 of 6.37 billion bushels. The previous record was in 1975 with a yield of 5.76 billion bushels.

The estimated average yield of 82.9 bushels per acre compares with last month's indicated 85.7 bushels, the previous year's 86.2 bushels and the 1972 record of 97.1 bushels, Leslie said. The report cites poor August weather for the lower production outlook for every major corn state other than Ohio and Wisconsin. Early above normal temperatures produced smaller than normal corn and poor ear filling. Subnormal rainfall in the last two weeks of August also hurt production.

Leslie said Illinois corn was 15 per cent mature on Sept. 1 compared with the usual 20 per cent. Iowa was 52 per cent mature compared with the normal 60 per cent; Minnesota at 70 per cent compared with the usual 55 per cent.

When harvesting results are available, a lower production

Soybean production as of Sept. 1 indications, is estimated at 1.24 billion bushels, compared with the August estimate by Leslie of 1.32 billion and the USDA estimate in August of 1.34 billion. The report listed 1975 production at 1.52 billion bushels and the record crop of 1973 was 1.54 billion.

Leslie said average soybean yield is 23.2 bushels per acre, compared with an August outlook for 27.2 and last season's record 28.4 bushels.

The report said high temperatures and below normal rainfall in August reduced production outlook for Arkansas, Mississippi and Louisiana, with declines also occurring in Missouri, Iowa, Illinois and Minnesota. In the central states, some double cropped acreage planted following wheat harvest is not expected to make a crop.

Illinois soybeans on Sept. 1 were 27 per cent at the point where leaves turned yellow, compared with the normal progress of 20 per cent. Iowa had 20 per cent compared with its five year average of 27 per cent. More rains and a later than normal frost would help bring the crop along the Mississippi River up to its remaining potential, the report said.

Spud, grain, meat futures dip

CHICAGO—Potatoes, grains, cattle and hogs all declined on Wednesday's commodity futures trading.

Commodity Futures Service said Maine potatoes closed 2 1/2 cents, with the sharpest declines in April. Sales totaled only 618, and brokers said profit taking motivated the declines. Trade hedging against weather prospects was also noted but there was no real feature in the market.

Floor attention remains centered on the attempts by the Commodity Futures Trading Commission to resolve questions arising from the May contract default. Merger of April and May contracts was reported under consideration on Wednesday.

Hedging and long liquidation were major factors in the corn pit, where more sophisticated traders view weather as having no appreciable effect on the size of the growing corn crop. But mention of possible rainfall in dry sections of the Midwest brought selling orders into the early action. The trend snowballed when soybeans offered little help. At the close, corn was down with 4 1/4 to 5 1/4 cent losses in deferred contracts while the spot month closed 2 1/2 cents lower.

Chicago cash basis was 12

35 to 53 points. September meal drew some buyers but it wound up 6.20 down and mixed, actions in other options closed them 4.30 to 5.50 off.

Wheat closed the day 9 to 11

Feeder cattle continued under pressure, reaching contract lows in March and 8 September. Live cattle weakness blocked a sustained raise after a break in Chicago markets, prompted short covering. Closing quotes were down 29 in September and 67 to 85 points lower in the back. Volume picked up at 151 trades.

Live hogs opened slightly higher but weakened steadily to close near the day's lows, off 40 to 87 points in moderately light volume of 3,388. Lower dressed prices and heavy kills also pressured futures.

Chicago Board of Trade silver traded about a penny over the previous close before word that authorization for a 118 million troy ounce sale was approved for inclusion again in a bill before Congress. Prices dropped to 16 to 17 cents under the previous close on short selling and long liquidation.

Last minute short covering, particularly in October, brought futures about 1 cent off the lows to settle with 11 1/2 to 14 1/2 cent losses.

New York Sugar 11 lost 22 to 40 points on 5,889 lots traded.

cents under September for boxcars and 3 cents under December for hoppers.

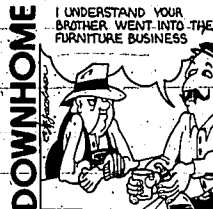

Less than limit up opening prices and forecasts of rain the soybean belt produced a negative psychological effect and heavy commission house selling pared the opening 15 to 20 cent surge. Early hedge sales encouraged long profit taking and beans dropped to a low 10 to 16 cents under Tuesday before closing 6 to 12 cents lower save for nearby September which ended only half a cent off.

The bean decline also affected September products, off, with other contracts down

Gem crop prices show wide range

BOISE (UPI)—Idaho commodity prices are commanding prices at the end of August ranging from the lowest in three years to the highest in two years, the Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service announced today.

Wheat, barley, mixed grain and dry bean prices were the lowest they have been in the last three years and oats were the lowest in two years.

Slightly lower prices from the previous month were alfalfa hay, all beef cattle and calves with steer and heifer prices at the lowest point since March 1973 and lambs at the lowest since September 1973.

The rest of the commodities showed "substantially higher prices" the service reported. Milk sold to plants was the highest since January, 1976 and more than 51 above the price of one year ago.

Wool prices remained rather steady but were much above the August, 1955 price of a year ago. It was announced, "The service reported dry peas and milk cow prices were at the highest level in two years."

Feed prices showed "substantial changes" in dairy feeds from mid-July to mid-August. "Compared with a year ago all feed commodities except in this report were higher except 14 per cent protein dairy feed and chick starter," the U.S. Department of Agriculture said.

Sugar price hike hinted

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—Sugar industry representatives from 27 Latin American and Caribbean nations and the Philippines have hinted sugar prices will be increased to "help protect the group's interests."

At the end of two days of closed-door talks here Tuesday the "Group of Latin American and Caribbean Sugar Exporting Nations" (GEPLACSA) issued a brief communique saying current prices "don't correspond to the reality of the market and much less to production costs of the member countries."

"Therefore, a series of measures to protect the group's interests—were considered."

Dress warmly for TF Fair, Rodeo

Twin Falls, Northside, Burley-Rupert area: Mostly clear and cool tonight. Sunny and warmer Friday. High temperatures 75 to 80 Friday, overnight lows 35 to 40.

Saturday's outlook: risk of afternoon showers and a little warmer. Spraying and dusting conditions will be generally poor through Friday.

Hailey, Camas Prairie, lower Wood River Valley: Fair and cool tonight. Sunny and warmer Friday. Overnight lows near 30. Highs generally in the 70s Friday.

Saturday's outlook: risk of afternoon showers and a little warmer. Spraying and dusting conditions will be generally poor through Friday.

A little warmer weather will be returning to the Magic Valley area Friday but a Pacific cold front now in the eastern Pacific will be moving inland Friday, bringing some high cloudiness into the area Friday night or Saturday. This will also increase the chances of a few showers near the mountain areas over the weekend.

Playing and combining operations should be in full swing through the remainder of the week as good drying conditions continue.

The extended outlook for Saturday through Monday: near seasonal temperatures and mostly dry, with some areas—highs 75 to 85, lows mostly in the 40s.

Meat firm officers draw fines

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Two executives of a major supplier of meat products to the Army were fined and given suspended prison Tuesday after pleading guilty to shipping "misbranded" sausage to government supply centers.

Thaddeus D. Zys, president of the San Bernardino Sausage Co., Inc., Highland, Calif., was given a three-year suspended prison term, placed on three years' probation and fined $2,000 by U.S. District Judge David W. Williams.

Zys, 49, pleaded guilty last July 13 to felony violations of the federal meat inspection act for mislabeling 65,000 pounds of meat products shipped to government facilities.

William L. Martin, 41, director of military sales for the firm, was given a one-year suspended sentence, placed on one year's probation and fined $500 on his guilty plea to a misdemeanor violation of the meat inspection act.

The firm was accused of labeling knockwurst and bratwurst products shipped to the military as "pure beef" or "pure beef and pork," according to the U.S. Attorney's office.

Butz picks consumer aide

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz, conceding a point to angry consumer activist protests, has named a "grass roots" consumer representative to his department advisory committee on regulatory programs.

Butz announced Tuesday he has appointed Rita Johnson, former chairman of the Montgomery County, Md., Advisory Committee on Consumer Affairs to the government panel which was set up last March to review departmental regulations which affect farming and the food industry.

The panel, which from federal meat and marketing orders which regulate sales of milk and vegetables. It will recommend whether some of the programs, which affect both farmers and consumers, should be modified or even eliminated.

The Consumer Federation of America, meanwhile, said Butz's action headed off a possible lawsuit against his department.

Carol T. Foreman, CFA executive director, said in an interview that "we were prepared to sue... we had a case prepared in an effort to force Butz to give the advisory group a consumer member with no ties to the food industry."

Initially, when the panel was formed last March, officials said consumer interests would be represented by one of the original eight members, Jane Armstrong, vice president for consumer affairs of the Jewel Food Stores, a Chicago-based firm.

Butz said the appointment of Mrs. Johnson, "who has been closely associated with consumer concerns, is the Department's response to public requests for a strengthened consumer representation on the committee."

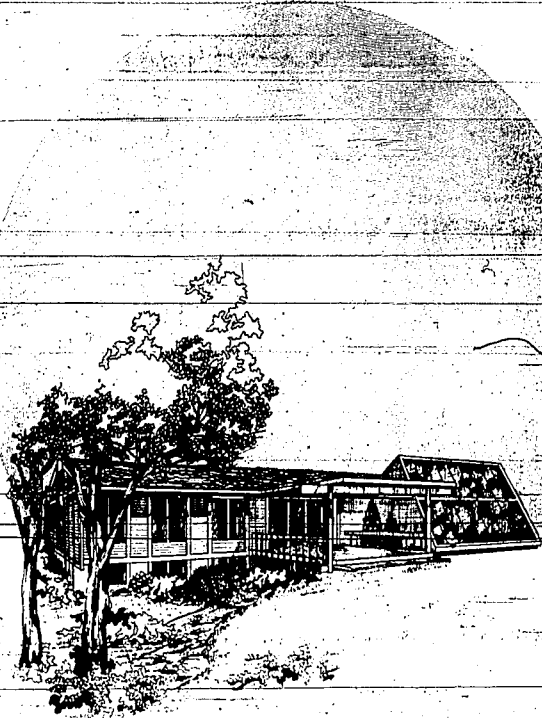

Mrs. Foreman said she was "glad" Butz had responded. She said Mrs. Johnson had been active in consumer oriented safety and health issues and was "well informed."

"She doesn't have experience in consumer advocacy groups with regard to food," but basically she has a good record," Mrs. Foreman added.

In June, at the Agriculture advisory group's first meeting, Mrs. Foreman and other consumer activists had staged a "street theater" demonstration by marching in with signs over their mouths to protest Butz's failure to name an independent consumer to the commission.

Solectric

a solar demonstration home

Can the sun heat a home in an Idaho winter at a cost that makes the effort worthwhile?

Idaho Power intends to find out.

Solectric (solar + electric) is an energy-saving home which will use solar collectors to heat rooms and provide hot water. The solar heat system is backed up by an electric heat pump for use during wintertime cloudiness and for summertime cooling.

The house has energy-saving features that would be a good idea in any home — solar heated or not:

- 2 x 6 studs in walls accommodating extra insulation
- Double-pane windows and storm doors
- Heat losses minimized

The Solectric demonstration home — part of Idaho Power's continuing program to encourage efficient energy use — is located in Boise and is open to public inspection.

The Solectric home. It's one of the ways the people at Idaho Power are working for an energy-wise future.

CASCADE — Harvest and motorcycles apparently have hurt the Castleford High School football team this year.

"We only have 12 eligible for tonight's game," coach Marvin Bartosovsky said today. "We have 15 out this year, and three of them don't have enough practices to be eligible."

He attributed some of the decline to farm operations which demand the time of some of the boys in the area.

"We just lost two," Bartosovsky continued. "They said their hired man quit and they were going to have to help out at home. And we have one that can't stay after school because he has to go home to move sprinklers or something."

But Bartosovsky pointed out other reasons for recent lack of interest in football.

"We are competing with the motorcycles and the material things the boys want, like cars," he said. "They want money to run around on, so they work instead of play football."

Bartosovsky said he was disappointed with the showing this year, but he said it will improve his team's performance.

"I figure if you have 11 you can play," he said. "It makes it pretty tough."

The team could easily end up short if any of the players are injured during the season, according to Bartosovsky.

"It is a bad situation," he said. "There is always a chance for injury."

He said the limited numbers will force him to play inexperienced freshmen against seniors on other teams in the conference which includes schools like Murtaugh, Raft River and Hansen.

"We play Jerome's JV's tonight," Bartosovsky said. "It is a pre-season game."

When asked if more players could still get on the team, he said, "It's too late, now. They can't possibly get in shape to be able to play a game this year."

Bartosovsky offered several theories for the decline in football players this year.

He said last year the team had 22 regulars and at the highest point, there were 26 boys out for the team.

This year, however, 33 signed up in the spring, but only the present number showed up.

This year's co-captain Jim Van Casteren is not pleased with the turnout, though he thinks the team will work hard with what they have.

"I don't feel too good about the number that turned out," VanCasteren said. "But for the number we have, there is good spirit."

He attributed the lack of interest to several different factors.

"A couple of the ones that didn't come out just plain didn't want to work," VanCasteren claimed. "And others didn't want to get hurt for basketball."

He also said some of the boys who would otherwise have played football are working and decided they wanted to work more than play football.

"I feel down on them for not turning out," VanCasteren said. "But we'll do okay for what we have."

Bartosovsky said he thought the turnout this year reflects a general trend in changing attitudes among Castleford students.

"It has been going down hill," he concluded.

Buhl man in jail on assault charges

GOODING — A Buhl man was in the Gooding County Jail today awaiting Fifth District Court action and a California criminal conviction in a Boise hospital as a result of an incident near Hagerman Sunday.

Delbert Hancock, 36, Buhl, was charged with aggravated assault in the alleged chain beating Sunday of Charles Lewis, 28, originally from California.

Lewis remained in critical condition today in St. Alphonsus Hospital-Boise where he is being treated for severe head injuries.

Deputy Sheriff Don Beaudreau, Gooding County, said Hancock was arrested Sunday at a rest area on U.S. Highway 20 south of Hagerman.

Deputy Beaudreau said an altercation developed about 3 p.m. at the rest area between Mr. and Mrs. Hancock and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis.

Joan Lewis suffered wounds about the back, the deputy said, after she was also reportedly beaten with a chain. She was treated at the Gooding hospital and released.

Deputy Beaudreau said apparently an argument developed between Don Lewis and Carol Hancock. Don Hancock was in the car with his wife Mrs. Lewis was allegedly beaten with a chain and Lewis went to her assistance and was also beaten with the chain about the head.

Hancock was arrested Wednesday in magistrate court here and bound over to the Fifth District Court on charges of assault. An attorney was appointed by the court and bond set at $2,500. Hancock remains in the jail, in lieu of bond, awaiting further court appearances.

Best of show

FILER — A German wirehaired pointer, owned by Larry and Vera Harkins, Kimberly, received the Best of Show trophy in the dog department at the Twin Falls County Fair.

The dog also won the blue ribbon in the sporting class with a German short-haired pointer, owned by the Harkins, receiving second, and a black Labrador, owned by Janine Haslam, Twin Falls, third.

In the puppies class, an Australian shepherd, owned by Charles Davis, Twin Falls, won first, a German wirehaired pointer, owned by the Harkins, second, and a cocker spaniel, owned by Jean C. Dowd, Buhl, third.

Boston quiet

BOSTON (UPI) — Minority students were again peacefully bused in schools in Boston's anti-busing standstills today as the second day of the third year of court-ordered school desegregation began quietly.

Six buses, escorted by two police cruisers and six motorcycle patrolmen, arrived at Charlestown High School and three buses pulled up to South Boston High without trouble.

TF may sue firm to obtain road funds

By BOB ZUCKERMAN

Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The City of Twin Falls may sue Greater Idaho Corp. and others to force it to pay the city for $40,000 in street construction.

City Attorney Charles Brammick said Tuesday night at the Twin Falls City Council meeting that the city will file a suit to force the firm to pay at least $40,000 for construction of a 3-mile road to be built on the northern border of the College of Southern Idaho.

The firm, which has property adjacent in 1972 equally splitting the cost of the project (about $120,000) with the city and the college, according to City Manager Jean Miller.

Under the agreement, the city has spent about $40,000 for items including engineering design and drainage structures on the roadway, and the college has agreed to spend another $40,000 for the primary graded bed for the road.

Greater Idaho was to pay $40,000 toward final construction of the roadway, or about $67,000 if sidewalk construction were included, Miller said.

Brammick said firm officials have "made it pretty clear they have no intention of paying anything right away, that's pretty well known."

"At this point, the only thing the City of Twin Falls is interested in getting from Greater Idaho is a check," Brammick said. "I don't see it."

He pointed to recent legal action taken against Greater Idaho by the Bank of Idaho. The Bank of Idaho was recently awarded more than $250,000 in a suit filed against Greater Idaho Corp., its subsidiary Regal Manufacturing Co., Inc., and

4 probe theft at courthouse

By CHRISTOPHER BOGAN

Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls police have thrown four detectives into the investigation of the disappearance of $111 from a safe in the county judicial building, police officials said today.

Detective Capt. Tim Qualls said he has assigned two more detectives, making a total of four to assist full time in the investigation.

"There is nothing unusual about four detectives on this case," Qualls said. The number of men assigned to a case is determined by the number of people who need to be interviewed and investigated, he said.

The investigation's procedure is no different than any other burglary investigation, Qualls emphasized.

The investigation has included the routine fingerprinting of employees in three county offices.

"The reason we fingerprint is because the safe was not broken into," Qualls said. "Someone had to have access to the safe. All people from the courthouse who have access to the safe have had access to the items that were placed in the safe, will have to be fingerprinted for the purpose of elimination."

"At this time this includes some of the employees of the prosecuting attorney's office (Prosecuting Attorney William Hofffield and his two deputy assistant attorneys Frank Dykas and Melvin Edwards were included in the fingerprinting—the employees of the magistrate court, and approximately 12 employees of the sheriff's office," Qualls stated.

The investigation began Aug. 11 when Hofffield informed the detective division of the police department that "residual" funds, temporarily being held by his office, were missing from a safe in the magistrate court offices.

The money was taken in the safe on July 27, according to Deane Matthews, secretary in the prosecutor's office who took the funds for deposit in the safe.

On Aug. 10 the funds were discovered missing, according to Charlene Hine, another secretary in the prosecutor's office. Hine made the discovery when she went to withdraw the funds from the safe to pay to a case claimant at the prosecutor's office.

In response to criticism that the city police may not be the proper law-enforcement agency to investigate this burglary, which occurred in a county building, Qualls said, "It's the responsibility of the Twin Falls Police Department to investigate all crimes—either misdemeanor or felony—committed within the city limits of Twin Falls, regardless of what building the crime is committed in."

"If it is a government building that a burglary has been committed in, we investigate the crime—not the FBI," Qualls stated. "This is the same situation we have here. It is a county building. We will investigate the crime. Our information will be turned over to the prosecuting attorney as is done in any investigation."

Forschler will not run for re-election

By SHANE O'NEILL

Times-News writer

RUPERT — The Southern Idaho Regional Airport Authority-SIRAA—will have a new chairman in December.

George Forschler, chairman for the last four years, announced Wednesday he will not run for re-election to the board of trustees.

Forschler, a Burley resident, represents Legislative District 25, which includes Cassia County and a small portion of Minidoka County, on the airport board.

Forschler's announcement came in a press conference immediately prior to a meeting of the SIRAA board. The authority later set the election date to coincide with the Nov. 2 general election.

"It's time to make room on top," said Forschler, who has been involved in the regional airport concept for the past 10 years.

"I will not miss my non-existent salary," he quipped.

Forschler's announcement had been expected. A petition has been circulated supporting Ed Elliott, Burley, as his successor.

Elliott was president of the Southern Idaho Chamber of Commerce when it inaugurated the regional airport effort.

Forschler, full of short of an endorsement of Elliott, but said, "I could support Mr. Elliott."

The SIRAA chairman said he feels it is important to have a strong individual represent the district.

SIRAA will cost taxpayers $30,704 in coming year

By SHANE O'NEILL

Times-News writer

RUPERT — Taxpayers in five Magic Valley counties will pay a total of $30,704 in property taxes to help support the Southern Idaho Regional Airport Authority in the coming year.

The ad valorem tax in Minidoka, Cassia, Jerome, Gooding and Lincoln counties was certified Wednesday by the SIRAA board of directors.

Two other Magic Valley counties, Blaine and Twin Falls, are not members of the SIRAA and will not be part of the property tax assessment to support the proposed regional airport.

The property tax assessment is based on the new budget for the SIRAA, a budget which is designed to "do as much as possible" without overspending, according to SIRAA officials.

Dr. L.V. Ruebel, Jerome, said the SIRAA "should move as rapidly as necessary and feasible, but within a minimal cost" to get the regional airport operating. He called the budget revisions "middle of the road, trending toward conservative" and added that a number of items had been deleted to keep the budget down.

The question of failure to induce Twin Falls and Blaine counties into the authority was raised by Elmer Ketterling, Minidoka County commissioner.

Ketterling asked if residents of the two non-participating counties could be charged an additional fee when they use the airport facilities.

"If the junior college in Twin Falls is any answer, yes, we can," Forschler replied, "but it's not that simple."

SIRAA attorney Pete Snow said he doubted such a charge could be made, but added, "I suspect they'll come in," so they can have a vote in management of the airport.

Snow added that he is sure it would cost Twin Falls taxpayers less to "pay their share in the regional airport than to maintain Justin Field."

"It appears we have come to an impasse" will have to take legal action.

"Councilman Henry Wendall asked the city manager if the city could hire a lawyer to add, "I suspect they'll come in," so they can have a vote in management of the airport.

Snow added that he is sure it would cost Twin Falls taxpayers less to "pay their share in the regional airport than to maintain Justin Field."

With several councilmen making construction costs for the project would go up if action were taken soon, the seven-member council voted 5-0 to open bidding for E-1 for construction of the street's curb, gutter and temporary asphalt paving. Mayor Paul Ostyn abstained because of a possible conflict of interest.

Councilman Stephen L. Hancock was absent.

Firm files suit

HAILEY — A Twin Falls paving firm is suing the Blaine County School District for accepting a bid allegedly higher than that of the plaintiff.

Beymeyer Paving Inc., contends the district accepted sealed bids for construction of two all-weather running tracks at Wood River High School and the Carey High School early this year.

Beymeyer submitted the lowest bid, the suit says. The construction firm seeks $18,000 in damages plus court costs.

School district records show Beymer Paving bid $54,800 for the job; Gordon Paving Co., Twin Falls, bid $36,920, and S. and B. Construction, Hailey, bid $39,920.

Blaine County School Superintendent Wayne Fagg said the Beymer bid was rejected on the basis of information received by the district from Bill Mathias, who oversees the now construction for Blaine school district.

Beymeyer was going to use the Anderson hatch plant in Blaine. Counts for the job. That plant was too small and did not have "a capability of accurately measuring the residue mixture," Mathias told the board.

CSI's Taylor apologizes to Blaine County aide

By BART QUESNELL

Times-News writer

HAILEY — College of Southern Idaho President James Taylor has apologized to Blaine County for recruiting a teacher for the coming year who was under contract to the Blaine County School District.

Blaine Supt. of Schools Wayne Fagg was directed by the school board two weeks ago to write Taylor about the apparent recruiting of Randy Berriochoa as an instructor and coach at CSI.

"This left us in an undesirable situation in trying to replace him this late in the year," Fagg wrote.

Fagg told Dr. Taylor it was understood the CSI contract was in error.

Recently the board accepted a letter of resignation from Berriochoa and has filled his position.

The board could have challenged his certification as a teacher for resigning so near the opening of school here.

Instead, the board decided to send a letter to Dr. Taylor expressing "the district's feeling about the recruitment of teachers just prior to a new school term."

Dr. Taylor responded, "Just saying I'm sorry for the manner in which an employee of your school district was recruited by members of my staff seems hardly adequate as I review your letter."

"Blaine County School administration has every reason for being 'displeased,'" Taylor wrote.

Relic falls

U.S. ARMY troops start to demolish ruins of the former German "Fuehrer" Adolf Hitler's headquarters at the Obersalzberg near Berchtesgaden. The army has occupied this area since the end of World War II and now needs the extra space to build a parking lot. (UPI)

Burley valuation increases

BURLEY — The assessed valuation of real property in Burley increased more than 6 per cent over the valuation a year ago.

The bulk of that increase came in Cassia County, with the North Burley area in Minidoka County dragging its heels on development.

Councilmen noted that proposed development north of the Snake River should boost that valuation next year.

City Clerk E.E. (Bud) Brinegar told the council Cassia County reported its valuation in Burley Tuesday. The 1970 figure is $10,874,000, an increase of $640,000.

Brinegar said the Minidoka County evaluation is $622,600, up $23,000.

That is a 6.3 per cent increase in Cassia County and a 3.9 per cent hike in Minidoka County.

On those figures, the council approved division of the city property taxes with 94.58 per cent to come from Cassia property owners and 5.42 per cent from Minidoka property owners.

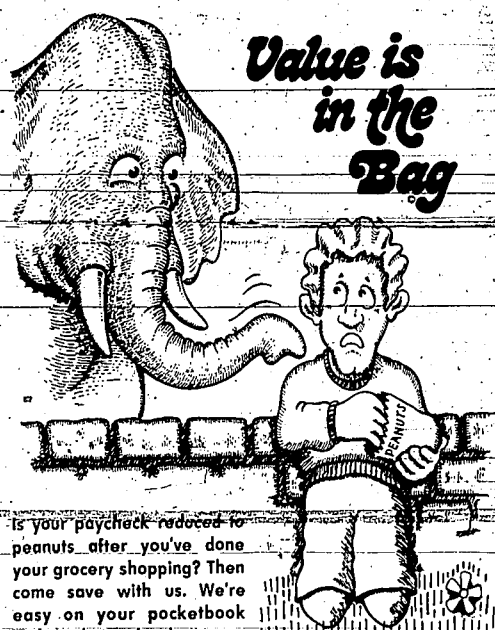

The total taxes to be levied under the 1970 budget, set last March, is $2,000,000 for general fund, streets and library.

The breakdown shows $236,450 from Cassia and $13,550 from Minidoka for general fund, $30,265 from Cassia and $1,735 from Minidoka for streets and $50,880 from Cassia and $1,192 from Minidoka for library.

Mayor Chuck Shaddock noted that Burley has lowered taxes each of the last three years by certifying the same figure for tax levy because of the increased valuations.

Judge rules NFL's college draft illegal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge ruled Wednesday that pro football's annual college draft is a blatant and unjustified violation of federal antitrust laws and struck it down as illegal.

U.S. District Court Judge William B. Bryant declared in his thunderbolt ruling on the eve of the opening of the 1976 National Football League season: "This outright, undisguised refusal to deal constitutes a group boycott in its classic and most pernicious form, a device which has long been condemned as a per se violation of the antitrust laws."

Specifically, Bryant upheld the claim of Jim "Fatso" Smith, a former Redskin, that the Washington Redskins had drafted him illegally by negotiating with him before he had been picked by the team.

The judge, who heard the case without a jury, awarded Smith treble damages totaling $276,000, plus costs and legal fees.

More significantly, Bryant dealt pro football its latest in a series of legal defeats. The NFL had no immediate comment on the decision until league attorneys had a chance to read the opinion, but an appeal to higher courts was anticipated.

Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFL Players Association, said through a spokesman: "Jim Smith has won a significant victory and we congratulate him. Maybe now, the NFL owners will understand they are living in the past and that they must now work with us to build a National Football League for the future. Judge Bryant's ruling is consistent with the court decisions in other recent cases.

"The game will flourish with the law," said a representative of the San Francisco 49ers commented: "If the decision stands, it will destroy the structure of pro football."

Garvey also said he felt the decision might hasten settlement of the long-standing contract deadlock with the league.

"One of the reasons we rejected or tabled the recent contract proposal by the league was that it contained a provision that we had to accept a common draft," Garvey said. "A lot of us felt that was illegal. Now that the court says it is illegal, any compensation plan is not legal. This puts us back to square one in the negotiations. Now we may need some outside help."

"Personally, I'm in favor of a draft along the lines of basketball, where there are certain provisions set up for the team to meet with the player drafted. I just hope now that instead of trying to beat the union, the league will sit down and work with us toward getting a contract."

Bryant suggested that a draft system might be devised which would meet legal challenges.

Stewart Johnson, attorney for Smith who has been recently doing janitorial work at his University of Oregon alma mater, said of the outcome of the case: "I'm happy for all the NFL players because the owners have been insisting in the past on the draft, the option clause, the Rozelle rule and other monopolistic practices. It's like trying to get a mine worker to accept modification to the Occupational Health and Safety Act or a worker to accept less than the federal minimum wage. It's just against the law."

The federal judge described the 39-year-old draft thusly: "The owners of the teams have agreed among themselves that the right to negotiate with each top quality graduating college athlete will be allocated to one team, and that no other team will deal with that person."

He said it strips college players "of any measure of control over the marketing of their talents."

The antitrust suit seeking damages against the NFL and the Redskins was initiated by Smith after a broken neck in the final game of his 1967 rookie year ended his playing career.

The former Oregon star claimed the draft was an illegal restraint of trade because it denied him opportunity to bargain effectively with the Redskins, who held sole right to his services. Smith, who made the starting lineup as a defensive back, argued through attorney Stewart H. Johnson Jr. that he was particularly restricted in obtaining contract provisions which would safeguard him financially if he suffered a disabling injury.

He collected $28,000 as a bonus for signing and $22,000 for his first year as a Redskin. Washington paid him $22,000 for what would have been his option year had he not been injured. When he would have been paid for a third year, the Redskins in legal limbo because of possible workmen's compensation stemming from the injury.

At the four-week trial, three of Smith's former Washington teammates—Jerry Smith, Roy Jefferson and Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFL Players Association.

Witnesses for the league included such figures as George Halas, Paul Brown, Bart Starr, Don Shula, Earl Morrall and Commissioner Pete Rozelle, who said the college draft, initiated by the league in 1937, was essential to maintaining competitive balance.

The NFL sustained two severe setbacks in federal courts during the last quarter. In one suit brought by former Minnesota Viking quarterback Joe Kapp, U.S. District Judge William Switzer of San Francisco held that the standard player contract binding a player to a team was illegal and indicated the same was true of the draft.

Earlier this year, U.S. District Judge Earl Larsen at Minneapolis struck down the Rozelle rule which allowed the commissioner to set compensation in players or draft choices to be paid by a team signing a free agent who had played out his option with another club.

Both decisions are being appealed by the league's attorneys.

Minico guns for fifth straight win in series against Burley on Friday night

The Minico Spartans go for something of a record when they host Burley Friday night in the feature of a 12-game prep high school weekend in Magic Valley.

The Spartans, who as the Rupert Pirates once lost 13 straight in the cross-river rivalry, can win their fifth in a row against the Bobcats and most oddsmakers believe that would be the best the Minico county boys have ever done.

Minico has lost to Burley only once since leaving the Eastern Idaho Conference in the spring of 1962 to join the SIC. They won three straight after that, lost a 20-0 decision in 1971, and since then have recorded off four in a row.

For Minico the change between the Bobcats and last week's foe, Skyline, should be quite clear when the teams step on the field. Burley is about average size for a high school team. Skyline is considerably bigger.

Perhaps because of that, Coach Kay Harper threw the ball 18 times against the Grizzlies, although Coach Harper proved at Raft River he didn't mind throwing that much. He used four different ways to start two of them running backs.

Burley also showed it likes to get things in the air as quarterback Dave Brown threw seven times last week when the Bobcats were nipping Jerome 23-28 in overtime.

While the Minico-Burley thing usually draws the biggest crowds, it isn't the only game in Magic Valley.

In fact, a pair of varsities tangle with Jaycee outfits to start things tonight. Castleford will be at Jerome to test the Tiger junior varsity while Glens Ferry, smarting from a 16-0 whitewash at Declo, will entertain the Mountain Home Jaycees, a traditional battle.

Friday night the traditional east-end squabble goes again. Murtaugh, considerably younger than expected, will travel to Kimberly where the Bulldogs have a win under their belts. Valley, which dropped Murtaugh convincingly, crosses the river to play at Hansen.

In what should be a strong defensive duel, Shoshone will travel to Declo. The Indians ran into a lot of trouble in losing their opener to Raft River but had its defense working a second-half shutout. Declo contained Glenn Perry which was expected to be an explosive line but will speed in the backfield.

Hagerman, presenting Coach Ron Knowles his first grid win over Wendell last week, stays home to entertain the Rimrock Raiders, an unknown quantity in this area.

Gooding leaves the district to play at Homedale Friday evening.

In a pair of afternoon games, the Jerome Tigers will be at Madison for a Cross State Conference game. Kickoff is 2 p.m. since the school has been unable to get its field and lights ready since the Teton dam broke.

Arch rivals Carey and Richfield will collide at Carey. Richfield unveiled a ground-hitting defense but didn't muster much offense in losing in the fourth quarter to Camas County last week. Carey, with probably the two tallest defensive ends in the state, will be making its debut.

Saturday offers an afternoon and evening doubleheader. Camas County plays host to Dwyette at 1:30 p.m. and the Nevadans sometimes have a very quick crew.

Saturday night Buld entertains Winnemucca. Buld's originally scheduled game with Wendell was cancelled due to the death of a Wendell player last week. Coach Jon Jund picked up the extra game Wednesday.

Long reach

Connors, Evert gain tennis semi-finals

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI) — If the center court at the West Side Tennis Club had been a boxing ring, Jimmy Connors and Jan Kodas would have split a lot of blood Wednesday, but they had to settle for racquet and ball and when it was over, the top-seeded Connors was in the semifinals of the U.S. Open.

Few players have shown their dislike for each other the way Connors and Kodas did before a capacity crowd of 16,223. They mocked each other openly, mimicked one another when serving or receiving service, and both wasted time when the other was ready to play.

The match was a slugfest full of unforced errors. There were few memorable shots. Connors won 7-5, 6-1, 6-1, to set up a semifinal meeting with third-seeded Guillermo Vilas, a 6-1, 6-2, 7-6, 7-6, winner over Eddie Dibbs.

The bottom half of the draw, which will be completed Thursday, pits Bjorn Borg against defending champion Manuel Orantes, and Dick Stockton, the last of the unseeded players, against life Nalasse.

If the fans didn't exactly want to Connors, they certainly gave their hearts to Chris Evert, the defending women's champion, who defeated Russia's Natasha Chmyreva, 6-1, 6-2, to register her 99th straight victory on a clay surface.

"I hate to lose," said Evert, whose last loss on the surface was to Evonne Culaquang at the Western Open in 1973. "I try to get it over as fast as I can."

In the semis, she meets Italian and Canadian Open champion Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia, who recorded a 6-2, 6-1 victory over her doubles partner, Virginia Ruziel of Romania.

Dianne Fromholtz of Australia lost the third semifinal berth, with a 6-1, 6-3, win over Linda Leslie of Daytona Beach, Fla.

Goalogon, runner-up of the last three years, defeated Rustie Casals, 6-1, 6-2, to claim the last semifinal berth and set up a match with her countrywoman, Fromholtz.

Goalogon's victory was the easiest of the four she scored en route to the semifinals. Casals made unforced errors, on overhead smashes and at the net, and she could not cover up these shortcomings against an opponent who covered ground with amazing speed.

Goalogon took the first five games of the first set and broke

Rosie in the fifth and seventh games of the second. Casals saved two match points in the eighth game, but Goalogon reached her third match point with an overhead backhand volley at the net, then powered an overhead smash into open court to clinch the match.

Neither Connors nor Kodas served well and the Czechoslovak, the 1973 Wimbledon champion who twice finished runner-up here during the last six years, served doublefaults on crucial points. Connors made unforced errors on his approach shots, especially on the forehand.

In the long first set, Kodas ended up in a court-side box after chasing down a Connors overhead. He seemed to be hurt, so Connors hurried over to see if he could help. Kodas got up and walked away without a word.

This set Connors to mimicking Kodas' jerky service action. Kodas replied by dusting off his shoes, and did it again when they changed ends. When Kodas was ready to serve, Connors played with the strings of his racket.

Three times Kodas appealed line calls. The last time was too much for Connors. He left the court and went and sat with the spectators.

There were seven service breaks in the first set. Kodas served a doublefault at 30 in the sixth game. A chance missed—He saved another doublefault in the 11th when in a similar hole—Again he lost his service, and one game later Connors had the set.

Vilas, who lost to Dibbs in the U.S. Pro Championship before the Open, said: "I was scared that he might decide to come to the net on every point when he was 2-1 down. I began playing quite steadily at the end of the third set."

Vilas, who has not been consistent this year, said: "I think I'm not playing very bad now. Eddie played good and when he missed, it was just by an inch or two."

Dibbs, who lost the third point of the fourth set tiebreaker on a disputed call, said: "Whenever you lose a big point like that to somebody like Vilas, it hurts you mentally. I played well, but he just played too well for me."

Vilas ran through the first set by taking the first five games. But by now Dibbs had got the feel of the court and the 16,223 crowd.

Bruins host Nampa Friday

TWIN FALLS — From the coaches through the players, Twin Falls' Bruins are eager for Friday night's football opener with the Nampa Bulldogs.

The two SIC opponents meet at 8 p.m. Friday at Brad Stadium with Nampa holding the advantage of having played a game and Twin Falls having the opportunity of having scouted them.

"The boys are really anxious to play," says Coach Dennis Almqvist. "This week they started to come alive in practice. We were a little flat last week because four weeks of practice without a game gets a little tough."

"We don't know what to expect," the coach continued. "Nampa is a very big team, they have linemen in the 230 and 240 pound area. They don't appear to be that polished yet, but they're sure big."

"Our quickness and our speed to the outside will have to offset that," he continued.

The coach says "our defense has really looked good the past couple of nights. (Linebackers) Ken Carr and Brent Thomas (returning starters) are playing very well. Our line is doing a pretty good job but in these openers you just worry about a couple of breakdowns caused by mental mistakes."

Although Nampa lost to Caldwell, Coach Almqvist isn't taking the Bulldogs lightly. "I thought Nampa went into it a little overconfident and then Caldwell got a couple of breaks," he said.

O.J. definitely not going to join Rams

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (UPI) — An 11th hour bid between the Buffalo Bills and the Los Angeles Rams failed Wednesday and the interference trading deadline passed without a deal being made for premier running back O.J. Simpson.

Simpson had told the Bills last June that he wanted to be traded to a National Football League club on the West Coast, preferably the Rams. Both clubs have held talks regarding the trade for the past few months and final talks were held just prior to the 4 P.M. EDT trading deadline between the National and American Football Conferences.

"O.J. Simpson is not coming to Los Angeles as a Ram," a Rams spokesman said in Los Angeles. "The trading deadline came and went and we made no deals with any clubs."

The spokesman said Los Angeles General Manager Don Klosterman had telephoned Bills Owner Ralph C. Wilson Jr. just 20 minutes before the trading deadline.

The spokesman said Klosterman "made several offers which included players, draft choices and a combination of the two, but there was no acceptance."

Redlegs won't give Gullett 5-year pact

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Cincinnati Reds pitcher Don Gullett, who hasn't signed his contract and could become a free agent in two months, has been holding out for a five-year pact, according to Reds' Vice President Dick Wagner.

"We're not close at all," says Wagner. "The major difference is the number of years of the contract."

"They (Gullett and his agent, Jerry Kapstein) want five years. We have offered two years. We get a very solid 'no' any offer under five years. We don't feel we can build successful teams on five-year contracts."

Unless the Reds sign Gullett by the first week of November, his name will go into a free agent pool and he can be drafted by a dozen teams. Gullett could then negotiate with them, along with the Reds.

Neither Gullett nor Kapstein will discuss details of their disagreement with the Reds.

However, Kapstein said there is a "$50-50 chance" Gullett will sign with the Reds.

While Gullett won't say if he wants to become a free agent, Kapstein says, "I wouldn't say Gullett is trying to get away from Cincinnati."

Griffin gets nod

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Two-time Heisman Trophy winner Archie Griffin, passed over by some NFL teams because of his small size, has won a starting assignment for the Cincinnati Bengals' regular season opener here Sunday against the Denver Broncos.

"Archie is hot," Head Coach Bill Johnson said of the rookie running back from Ohio State. "He will start Sunday."

Griffin led the club in rushing in pre-season play with 197 yards, despite missing the final two games because of a pulled groin muscle. But Johnson proclaimed Griffin healthy for the regular season.

ASU national hopes open against UCLA

TEMPE, Ariz. (UPI) — Arizona State, figuring to have its first legitimate chance at the national championship, faces its first test Thursday against UCLA in a game that features two upset bowl winners.

The Sun Devils, consistent winners in 18 years under coach Frank Kush but constantly struggling for national recognition, made their biggest move last December with a victory over Nebraska in the Fiesta Bowl that gave them a No. 2 national ranking—UCLA eliminated its season with a Rose Bowl victory over Ohio State, but enters this year under rookie coach Terry Donahue and without quarterback John Sciarra.

Arizona State is ranked seventh and UCLA 14th beginning this season.

The nationally-televised game, with a temperature of near 100 expected at kickoff, has all the makings of an offensive battle with both teams featuring a strong running back.

Wendell Tyler figures to be the workhorse for the Bruins after gaining 1,388 yards as a junior.

Alston unsure of retiring

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Manager Walter Alston, one of the five most successful managers in major league history, denies published reports he will retire as manager of the Los Angeles Dodgers, the club said Wednesday.

Alston's denial was in response to a Los Angeles Herald-Examiner story that the 61-year-old manager would announce his retirement at the end of this season.

"I have talked with Walt Alston this morning and he told me he has made no decision concerning his plans for 1977," a club spokesman said. "Walt said his main concern at this point is the team's bid to catch Cincinnati. At the end of the season, we will sit down with Walt and discuss 1977."

Alston had been under fire in recent months as the Dodgers continued to slip behind the Reds in the race for the National League West title.

The newspaper also reported Tom Lasorda, the Dodgers' 35-year-old third base coach, would be in line for Alston's job.

Norton confident

GROSSINGER, N.Y. (UPI) — "They gave Ali the second fight," said a serious Ken Norton. "This time there won't be any doubt. I'm going to end the era of Ali."

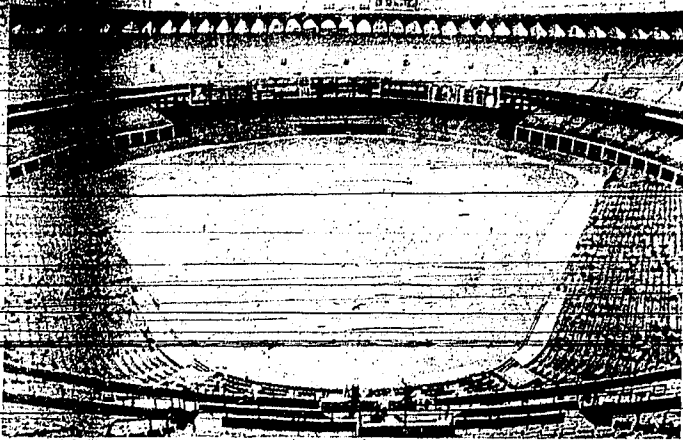

The 31-year-old contender, who has made no decision concerning his fight for 1977, has been hard at work for the past 10 days.

Ali arrived at nearby Kiamasha Lake with his entourage two days ago.

Current plans call for both to continue their training schedules in the Catskill Mountains until approximately three days before their scheduled 15-round battle at Yankee Stadium on Sept. 20.

Norton, who feels very strongly that he will be both previous bouts with Ali, has been making his own mind up.

"I'm going to make Ali quit," he said. "I was ready to quit with Frazer in Manila. I'm gonna quit so much pressure on him, he's just gonna throw his hands up and quit. I know I've set my goals high but I feel if the goal is worth attaining, it has to be a high one. I really feel I can make the champ quit!"

Oliver puts Idaho touch in rodeo with roping win

FILER — Veteran Dean Oliver of Boise made a rather infrequent appearance Wednesday night at the Twin Falls County Rodeo and romped off with the calf roping title.

Oliver, who has reached the top in this sport on many occasions, but is better known around here now for his golf ability marked an 117 compared with a 124 for runner-up Jeff Copenhagen, last year's calf roping champion.

A capacity crowd reacted well to a starting performance by both the cowboys and the Flying U stock. The quality of the cowboys for this event was never in doubt since 50 of the 200 competing here have qualified for the U.S. national finals. That qualification requires being in the top 15 in each event.

Although the crowd found the weather a little chilly, the Flying U stock loved it.

The animals were vibrant, described Bob Burton, public relations man for the Flying U.

He explained the animals have had a week off since their last run in Tremonton and have enjoyed good exercise and feed during that vacation. That rest coupled with the chilly weather proved the stimulus the animals needed to put on a show.

For the most part the cowboys were equal to the challenge, however, Neil Callister, riding Stubb, compiled a fine 76 to win the bareback event.

Pat Noble was super in the steer wrestling at four seconds while the current all-time world champion, Tom Ferguson, posted a 4.7. Ferguson is planning to become the first-ever to earn $100,000 in a rodeo year.

The saddle bronc riding was split between Neil Coleman, on Rye Whiskey, and Don McManis, riding Sundancer. They were awarded 715.

The bundled up crowd was treated to some fantastic bull riding with the best being a 7.20 by Kelly Whalen, aboard Durango.

Lila Glade was clocked in 17 seconds in winning the Girls Rodeo Association barrel race.

The rodeo continues over the next three nights with Thursday night's action completing the first opportunity to average out the riders and pinpoint the overall leaders for all events.

The rodeo is offering $16,000 in prize money this year, establishing it as one of the top 25 in the nation.

Pirates sweep Phils to reduce lead to 4½ games

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Richie Hebner drove in four runs with a single and a double and Bill Robinson went 3-for-4 Wednesday night to give the charging Pittsburgh Pirates a 6-1 victory and a sweep of their three-game series with the collapsing Philadelphia Phillies.

The Pirates' 13th victory in their last 14 games moved Pittsburgh to within 4½ games of the Phillies, who have lost 11 of their last 12 games, in the National League East. The Pirates were 15½ games behind Aug. 23.

Angels blank reeling Royals

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — Mike Easter drove in a pair of runs with singles in the first and fifth innings while Gary Ross and Dick Drago combined on a six-hitter Wednesday night to lead the California Angels to a 2-0 win over the stumbling Kansas City Royals. Ross of nine of their last 10 games.

Montanez from second base with one out in the top of the 10th, to drive in one-run and catcher Fred Kendall's throwing error allowed another tally as Atlanta beat the San Diego Padres 3-1, ending the Braves' six-game losing streak Wednesday night.

Twins drop Rangers 3-1

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — Lyman Bostock had four hits and tripled in the go-ahead run while Steve Luebber spaced seven hits as the Minnesota Twins scored a 3-1 victory over the Texas Rangers Wednesday night in a game ended by rain after seven innings.

Jets shuffle 25 players in shakeup

By RICK GOSSELIN
UPI Sports Writer

The Cleveland Browns can throw away the preseason scouting films on the New York Jets because they are no longer operative.

The team the Jets take onto the field in the 1978 season opener at Cleveland Stadium will hardly resemble the team New York fielded in its preseason finale against the Pittsburgh Steelers last Saturday.

The Jets staged one of the biggest shuffles ever at this stage of a National Football League season Wednesday when they traded two players, cut seven and claimed eight more on waivers.

New York Coach Lou Holtz, obviously displeased with his team's 1-5 preseason performance which was capped by a 41-6 humiliation in the finale at Pittsburgh, waived four veterans and traded two more to cap a 48-hour span in which 25 player movements were consummated.

Elsewhere on an otherwise tranquil day, the Kansas City Chiefs announced that they would invite quarterback Terry Hanratty and running back Ron Johnson to try out this week once they clear waivers; the Philadelphia Eagles were awarded defensive back Al Clark on waivers from Los Angeles; and Green Bay was awarded center Bob Hyland on waivers from the New York Giants.

The Jets traded linebackers Godwin Turk to Denver and Richard Wood to Tampa Bay and cut veteran center Wayne Mulligan, defensive back Rich Sowell and running backs Jaze Jackson and Bob Gresham. Holtz also cut rookies Don Buckley, Buck Baker and Joe Davis.

The Jets were awarded waiver claims on three linebackers—Mike Hennigan from Detroit; Larry Keller from San Diego; and Carl Russ from Atlanta—plus tackle Al Kreyfus from Cincinnati, wide receivers Ed Marshall from Detroit and Howard Saltzerwhite from Washington, strong safety Tommy Marvoso from Washington, and offensive lineman Stan Rogers from Denver.

SE nips LA 1-0 in 11th

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Pinch-hitter Darrell Evans sacrifice fly scored Gary Thomasson in the 11th inning Wednesday night giving the San Francisco Giants a 1-0 victory over Los Angeles and dropping the Dodgers nine games behind Cincinnati in the NL West.

Sox rally past A's

OAKLAND (UPI) — Pinch-hitter Sam Fwing singled to score Buckey Dent with the winning run, as the Chicago White Sox scored three runs in the eighth inning Wednesday night to defeat the Oakland A's, 6-5.

Nicklaus tires of retirement queries

PINEHURST, N.C. (UPI) — A slightly perturbed Jack Nicklaus recalled Wednesday the barrage of questions about his future in golf he has answered this year after winning only two tournaments.

"Every question I get is 'what's happened, what's the matter, where are you going, and sometimes, when are you retiring,'" said golf's leading money winner as he prepared for a practice round for Thursday's start of the $200,000 World Open golf tournament on the Pinehurst No. 2 course.

"I suppose people are used to seeing me win every other week," said Nicklaus who last week boosted his yearly money winnings by $100,000 with a victory in the World Series of Golf.

At this time last year, Nicklaus had won four tournaments and he also captured the World Open here in a playoff against Billy Casper. So far this year, he has won $261,769, tops on the 1976 tour, and he gets a little irritated when questions suggest his game is on a downhill slide.

He played exactly the same number of tournaments, I've won more money and my scoring average is lower," said Nicklaus. "I also happen to be enjoying the game as much as I ever have, and maybe more."

Nicklaus heads a class field of competitors for the $100,000 first prize and the tournament is played on one of his favorite courses.

"It's a great course. It's one of the best," said Nicklaus of the 7,007-yard par 71 layout.

The course is known for its small greens which float to the outside and its grass bunkers that create an extra hazard for approach shots.

Stocks at midday

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened lower Thursday in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average was off 2.56 points to 990.36 shortly after the opening. Declines led advances, 210 to 120, among the 538 issues crossing the tape.

Analysts here were puzzled by the net the "Dow Jones industrial average" has been unable to sustain a drive through the 1,000 level because of profit-taking. Most saw the normal, however, in light of a "strong gain in the average during the past week and a half."

Wall Street was faced with a number of uncertainties in this session. In England, the pound sterling plunged early in the day in reaction to the threat of a strike by National Union of Seamen, which could cripple the Bank of England's efforts to support the pound to prevent its slide.

Cajun hunters go for 'gators

GRAND CHERIE, La. (UPI) — It's too tight there in the alligator world. Starting at sunup Thursday, Cajun hunters and trappers will move over the watery paths of Cameron, Calcasieu and Vermilion parishes with licenses to kill about 4,500 alligators.

A few weeks later survivors of the one-month harvest will be moved into the muddy bottoms of canals and bayous to snare away the winter. The strictly controlled kill will bring in 20 per cent of the alligators living outside refuge areas in the three parishes.

The southwest corner of Louisiana is the only area in the nation where the gator is not an endangered species. Gators in the area were excluded from the federal protection list last year.

Removing the gator from the endangered list did not resolve the economy-ecology conflict created by its population explosion.

A ban on interlateral sales cut the value of alligator hides in half from the 1973 high of $16 a linear foot. Domestic buyers prefer the smaller gators because of their fine, scale pattern, but it is the large gators that pose the greatest threat to the trapping industry because of their appetite for bear-baring mink, muskrat and mink.

Numerous states forbid the sale of alligator hide products. Alligator meat, which has a delicate taste, somewhat like frog legs, may not be sold anywhere.

Despite the depressed prices, Wild Life and Fisheries biologist Ted Joann said the gator has been proved an economic asset, thus guaranteeing its preservation as a renewable resource.

"We have secured him," he said. "This animal will be perpetuated for all time because of its commercial value. And not only him but the wetlands where he lives."

Louisiana officials are working to have the sales laws lifted to provide a bigger market for alligator products and make alligator farming profitable.

Anticipating that day, Joann and fellow biologist Larry McNease began several years ago to raise "super gators" that grow twice as fast as wild alligators. It's done by keeping them in heated tanks to prevent their nongrowth winter hibernation period.

Instead of sleeping the super gators eat and grow fast. The super gators are now being sold as wild gators.

In the meantime, area trappers will take advantage of the alligator season to destroy some of their competition and pick up extra cash. Last year an average 7-4 foot hide brought $38.55.

Big catch

PERSHING Nunez and daughter, Ella Mae, Pecan Island, La., land a 10-foot alligator in swamps of southwest Louisiana during last year's open alligator season.

Hunters and trappers again will be allowed to kill about 4,500 gators this year. There are an estimated 300,000 of the reptiles in Louisiana. (UPI)

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune. All Rights Reserved.

DEAR ABBY: If I were a Catholic, I'd go to confession and get this guilt off my conscience, but seeing as how I'm a Baptist, I'm writing to you instead.

I'm a grown woman, but I've been acting like a schoolgirl about a man in town. I became infatuated with him two years ago, and I haven't been able to leave him alone since.

I've sent him anonymous love letters, cards and poems, and I've even called him on the phone to hear his voice, but I always hang up right away.

I've waited on street corners just to catch a glimpse of him, but I've never spoken to him. He knows someone has a crush on him, but he doesn't know who.

Abby, I can't get this man out of my mind. I even dream about him. Is it wrong to enjoy a little harmless fantasy?

Sometimes I hate myself for pestering him like I do, but I can't seem to help myself. Just writing this has made me feel better. Thanks for listening.

FULLY GROWN CHILD

Reader confesses

DEAR CHILD: It's not "a little harmless fantasy" to call a man on the phone and hang up. And sending anonymous letters, cards and poems can make him feel threatened and uncomfortable.

You are guilty of harassment—which is punishable by law. I urge you to leave the man alone, for his sake and yours.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is a small one, but it's causing a lot of disagreement between my husband and me. I'm 23 and he is 27.

I have a 6-year-old brother who my husband feels should say, "Yes, Ma'am" and "No, Ma'am" to me, and "Sir" to him.

I strongly disagree, Abby. I don't want a brother of mine saying "Ma'am" to me, no matter what age he is.

I've asked a lot of people how they feel about this "Ma'am-and-Sir"-business and have gotten mixed reactions. I'd like to know how you feel about it.

NOT "MA'AM" IN MOBILE, ALA.

DEAR NOT: In Iowa where I was raised, children addressed adults with "Ma'am" and "Sir" to show respect for their elders.

In the South, years ago, it was mandatory for servants to use "Ma'am" and "Sir" when addressing their employers. (Some still do.)

Since you're from Alabama, I can understand your objections. Your husband obviously wasn't raised in the South.

DEAR ABBY: Several years ago, my husband's brother died. His widow now claims that she is no longer related to any of my husband's family. How about her children? Aren't they still my nieces and nephews? And aren't they still the grandchildren of her deceased husband's parents? She is getting married again, and even though she will have another husband and another name, I still feel that she is my sister-in-law, but she feels otherwise.

Please straighten this out.

CANCELLED OUT

DEAR CANCELLED OUT: If your signature reflects your feelings, don't try to maintain a family relationship with your former sister-in-law. Technically, she is no longer related to her deceased husband's family, but her children will always be related to them.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped #10 envelope.

FDA lifts drug restrictions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government Wednesday approved over-the-counter sales of 10 drugs designed to temporarily relieve the coughing and sneezing of the common cold and such allergies as hay fever.

The Food and Drug Administration announced it was removing, at least for the next year or two, the prescription requirement for 10 of 14 ingredients recommended for unrestricted sales by one of its advisory panels. It rejected three of the preparations and reserved judgment on the other.

New cough and cold products containing the ingredients will be on the market this fall, FDA officials said at a news conference.

Marketing is conditional or the next year or two, they said, while the agency reviews the panel's 1,000-page report on the $7.6 million a year industry covering 35,000 to 40,000 nonprescription cold remedies.

Dr. Francis C. Lowell, chairman of the advisory panel and associate professor of medicine at Harvard, said: "For the millions of Americans who correctly self-diagnose a 'common cold,' the ingredients and products which we have reviewed and found effective will provide some temporary relief from symptoms and thereby make the user more comfortable while the disease runs its own course."

Lowell stressed that such preparations are capable only of temporarily relieving the effects of a cold, for which there still is no generally accepted preventive or cure.

The panel found in a study of 120 ingredients currently available in nonprescription cold remedies that 41 were safe and effective. 30 required further study and 49 should be removed from the market.

It rejected claims by Nobel Laureate Linus Pauling that Vitamin C is effective in preventing or treating the common cold, saying that while they are not "totally unfounded," they "are not justified" and need further study.

The Health Research Group, a consumer organization affiliated with Ralph Nader, called the FDA ruling "a major concession to the mammoth, cough and cold empire" and said almost all such drugs are an unproven safety and effectiveness.

But the Proprietary Association, representing manufacturers and distributors of nonprescription medicines, said the ruling will give consumers a wider choice of self-medication and "relieve the already overworked physicians."

The 10 ingredients approved by FDA include two antihistamines, Brompheniramine and Chlorpheniramine; four bronchodilators to ease breathing difficulties, Methoxyphenamine and three different salts of Theophylline; and four nasal decongestants, Oxymetazoline, two salts of Pseudoephedrine, and Xylometazoline.

Nonsmokers offer telethon 'deal'

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—The director of a nonsmokers organization said Tuesday the group offered to donate up to $10,000 to the Labor Day Muscular Dystrophy telethon if host Jerry Lewis would not smoke during the television program.

Jerry Hofrock, director of Nonsmokers Medallions of America of Austin, said the organization never received any acceptance from telethon officials in Las Vegas.

"Our concern was to lay it on the line: Is he genuine? Is he the man doing something as an ego drive, or is he concerned? There's no reason for him to chain smoke for 22 hours."

Hofrock said 12,000 people die each year from muscular dystrophy, while 300,000 die from diseases related to cigarettes.

He said he talked to a supervisor who promised to relay the offer to Lewis.

"He (Lewis) apparently would not comply," Hofrock said.

SALLY FIELD

Women in the news

Sally Field, last seen as the eccentric southern belle in "Slay-Hungry" in Atlanta, Ga., to co-star with Burt Reynolds in "Smoky and the Bandit."

She will play an eccentric New York dancer who jolts Reynolds on a chase through the deep south.

A special screening of Dyan Cannon's first film will be held in New York Monday as part of the Second International Festival of Women's Films.

"Number One," a film about children, was produced, directed and written by Ms. Cannon.

Joan Baez, 35, will make one of her rare concert appearances in New York Friday. And, although critics of her recent albums say her voice is "not improving with age," every ticket for the concert was sold out weeks ago.

Deborah Raffin, who has been posing all over Montauk Point, N.Y., for a coming layout in Vogue Magazine, is going to star in Oliver Reed's new movie, "Ransom." While working in the movie, Revlon will work out a new ad model for her, so it does not conflict with all the other things she is doing.

Ginger Rogers, who canceled an August booking in Connecticut because of curling-iron burns, bowed out midway through a six-day appearance in New York that was to have ended on the weekend. Producer Lewis T. Fisher said the 65-year-old actress "has an infection which makes it impossible for her to put on makeup without great pain."

Miss New York State, Sonja Anderson, has left the Broadway cast of "My Fair Lady" to compete in the Miss America Pageant next weekend.

SONJA-ANDERSON

JOAN BAEZ

Jodi Clayton, Fiet exchange vows

SHOSHONE—Jodi Clayton and Allen Layne Fiet were married Aug. 21 at the First Baptist Church, Shoshone. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray D. Clayton, Shoshone, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Fiet, Wendell. The Rev. Robert League of the Community Methodist Church, Shoshone, performed the double-ring ceremony before an altar flanked with wrought iron standing candelabra holding blue candles and entwined with peach gladioli. Baby's breath and blue ribbons. Wrought iron baskets of peach gladioli also flanked the altar.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a gown fashioned in candlelight. Polynesian satin with a chapel train. Tiny pearl buttons adorned the tucked bodice and full, gathered sleeves.

The triple-tiered cathedral-length veil of candlelight, illusion net was attached to a candlelight caplet, adorned with gardenias which matched the flowers in the bride's bouquet, a cascade of gardenias, ranunculus, stephanotis and baby's breath.

The gown and veil were designed by the bride and made for her by Mrs. Myron Johnson, Shoshone.

The bride wore a single-strand pearl necklace, belonging to her mother as a token of sentiment.

The maid of honor was Penny Clayton, sister of the bride, and bridesmaids were Katy Rayhorn, Twin Falls, and Dana Mullins, Wendell.

Best man was Todd Rosen, Shoshone, and groomsmen were Don Winn and Tony Clayton, brother of the bride. Organist for the wedding was Tom Croft.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church where the bride and groom greeted their guests in front of the fireplace, which was flanked with bouquets of peach gladioli.

The bride's table was covered with a blue tablecloth surrounded by net and decorated with scallops of blue ribbons and bows. Blue candles were held in silver candlesticks belonging to the bride's grandmother.

The three-tiered cake rested on five round cakes and was decorated with fresh peach gladioli, ivy and baby's breath.

The cake was made and decorated by Mrs. Gordon Sorensen, Shoshone.

Mrs. Frank A. Finlayson, aunt of the bride, Twin Falls; Mrs. Lyle Piper and Mrs. Everett Ward, cousins of the bride from Richfield, served at the refreshment table.

Rhonda Blackburn and Chris Harris registered the guests and Mary Betts, Donna Pierson and Tami Caraway attended the gift table.

The wedding dinner was hosted by the groom's parents at the Manhattan Cafe in Shoshone.

A pre-nuptial shower was given for the bride by Katie Rayhorn and Diana Mullins.

Following a wedding trip to San Valley, the couple will reside in Parkrose, Ore., near where the bridegroom is employed by the Union Pacific Railroad.

Speaker slated for 2 TF clubs

TWIN FALLS—Members of the Magic Valley Christian Women's Club and the Magic Valley After "5" Club will hold separate meetings Sept. 16 but will share the same speaker.

Mrs. Joan Cummins, Springfield, Ore., a professional model, will address the Magic Valley Christian Women's Club members at noon in a luncheon session at the Holiday Inn. She is a former chairman in the organization and the mother of three children.

Reservations for the noon luncheon group may be made by contacting Opal Kirkman, Twin Falls, 734-7544 by Tuesday, Sept. 14.

There will be a free nursery at the TWCA for infants through five years of age with arrangements made by calling 734-7214.

The After "5" group will meet Sept. 16 in the Holiday Inn for a dessert dinner at 7:30 p.m. Mrs. Cummins will also address this group. Reservations may be made by calling Sand Phillips, 423-4531 by Tuesday, Sept. 14.

In the afternoon meeting, music will be furnished by a trio of Belle Hendrix, Vera Meyer and Barbara Mason. Special feature will be "A Invelier-youth" with tips by Shirley Yasko on skin care and cosmetics.

Company I plans comedy

TWIN FALLS—Company I will present Noel Coward's comedy "Hay Fever" Sept. 16, 17, and 18 at the YM-YWCA, beginning at 8 p.m.

The cast includes Mary Bain, Tom Costello, Cindy Pecher, Rich Durrington, Vicki Childs, Ken Hodge, Cheryl Chandler, Randy Butler and Mary Benson.

"Hay Fever" is a study of the family life of a once popular actress. Relieved from the stage and the ropes of her former glory, she sinks into her former glory.

Edward D. Britt will be directing the Coward classic.

Tickets may be purchased from cast members or reserved by calling 733-8785 or 734-2641.

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—What makes a person feel cold? I am 25 and when the temperature is below 70 degrees Fahrenheit I feel cold.

I stay in the house most of the time unless it is above 70 degrees. I don't go swimming because I can't stand the water temperature. It doesn't matter whether it is an indoor or outdoor pool, I still feel cold.

I receive quite a few letters from people about this. The sensation of feeling cold is not a reliable indicator of how hot or cold the body really is. It only indicates that the skin is hot or cold. You feel hot or cold only in relation to stimulation of nerve endings in the skin, not the rest of the body.

The sensation of being hot or cold is greatly affected by the amount of blood circulating through the skin. A person with low thyroid functions feels cold because this condition results in decreased blood flow through the skin.

Woman, 25, always cold

By contrast if you had an overactive thyroid your body would be generating increased metabolism. That would increase the flow of warm blood to the skin.

Feet and hands feel cold because they get the least amount of circulation under normal resting circumstances. So what can you do? Increase the flow of blood to your skin. The best way to do that is to be more active. Physical activity generates body heat and in turn the blood flow to the skin is then increased.

Another cause for feeling cold is a poor diet. Inadequate caloric intake means less heat is formed. The body metabolism slows if you don't eat enough. It is nature's way of protecting you, but this causes you to feel cold.

So, eat right and increase your physical activity. It could help. If you still feel cold have a checkup of your thyroid and to be sure you are not anemic.

For more information I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-6, Body Temperature and Fever. Others who want this issue can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, TX 78202.

Dear Dr. Lamb—What are the symptoms of an abdominal aneurysm? Is there any visible movement on the outside of the abdominal area? I am a female age 36 and weigh 117 pounds.

Dear Reader—An abdominal aneurysm is a dilation of the large artery, the aorta, that courses down the front of the spine. The sac-like dilation most often occurs in middle aged or older persons, usually with some atherosclerosis (fatty cholesterol deposits) of the large aorta.

If the aneurysm is small and the abdomen is large it may be impossible to feel it on physical examination. When the stomach is very lean and if the aneurysm is larger then it can be felt and the pulsations can also be seen when the patient is lying on his back.

Many very thin people with normal forceful pulsations of the aorta have pulsations you can see and if you put your hand over the aorta you can then feel it. That doesn't mean it is a dilated sac or aneurysm. I would guess you are in that category and do not have an aneurysm, but the way to find out is to let your doctor do a physical examination and find out what is worrying you.

Coin snatching record

ROANOKE, Va.—UPI—Gary Grear has laid claim to the world record in coin snatching by flipping 42 coins off the back of his arm simultaneously and then catching them with the same hand.

Grear's Labor Day feat surpassed the old Guinness World Book of Records mark set by an Englishman who coin snatched 19 British pennies.

Grear, 30, flipped and caught 42 half dollars to set his record in Roanoke.

TF club holds tea

TWIN FALLS—The Twentieth Century Club opened the fall season Tuesday with its annual tea honoring its past presidents and guests from the area.

Mrs. W.O. Watts, president of the local club, presided. The executive board comprised the receiving line.

Mrs. Mae Chatterton led the group in the pledge to the flag, followed by the inspirational thought by Mrs. Watts. Mrs. Albert Allen, accompanied by Mrs. K.V. Shaw, presented a group of vocal solos. The history and accomplishments of the club were reviewed by Mrs. John Dwyer, followed by Mrs. Elizabeth Peavey, who modeled a dress she wore when she was president of the club 35 years ago.

Teresa Stradley, club representative to Girls State, gave a report of her experiences as a Girl Stater.

Mrs. George Hartley presented the past presidents with a tribute and a gift.

Tea was served by Mrs. Jack Ainsworth and Mrs. Stella Bell. The tea committee included Mrs. Roy Russell, Mrs. Howard Fisher and Ruth Brown.

Carroll Righter

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, SEPT. 10, 1978

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is your best time in a long while to put in effect new plans. Make sure those you contact are of the same mind as yourself or later there could be some friction.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Think over what your personal aims and their do your best in attaining them. Contact good friends who can be helpful.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Make plans that are necessary to improve your status in life. Sidelstep one who is detrimental to your best interests.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Find the best way to become more successful in the future. Being in the company of those you like can add to your well-being.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Acquire the appliances you need to become more efficient at your work. Show others that you have great ability.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You have an outlet in the office that should be studied carefully before making a decision. Making new contacts of worth is wise.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Your hunches are good and should be relied upon today. Avoid one who is extravagant. Listen to what your mate has to suggest.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Listen closely to the wishes of an associate today, since this could be most important. Be more alert in business activities.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You're a fine organizer and can now work out a plan that will bring you more success in the future.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A good time to go after the new pleasures that appeal to you and bring more happiness into your life. Spend your money wisely.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Discuss long-range plans for the future with family members. Sidelstep an opponent who is trying to make trouble.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Contact influential persons who can assist you in a project you have in mind. You can produce more now by being more active.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) The money part of your living is very important now, so don't be too extravagant. Find a way to add to your assets.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will understand new ideas and will be very capable, but must be taught to use caution before jumping into anything, and then there can be much success in this chart. Consistency must be acquired or his progeny could be only a starter and not a finisher of anything.

GASOLINE ALLEY

what's what

Among the most truthful of TV ads these days is said to be that oil filter bit wherein the actor-mechanic says, "Pay me now or pay me later." It has been reported that a survey of numerous experienced auto mechanics in New Jersey and Pennsylvania indicates a relatively large proportion of them drive elderly cars which they keep in good condition. How? Nothing to it, say they, or words to that effect. A simple change of oil and filters plus a lube job every 2,000 or 3,000 miles can maintain the machinery in dandy shape for as long as 20 years.

TELEPHONE
Q: "What's the first telephone number a child should be taught to dial?"
A: Some say "0" in case of extreme emergency. But there are others who reasonably contend that a youngster should not be shown how to dial any number. On the contrary, claim they should be instructed firmly and clearly to stay off that corresponding instrument altogether without specific permission. Still, I don't agree that people who let their preschool children answer the telephone should be electrocuted. Horrible, whipping would serve.

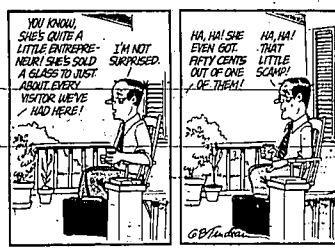

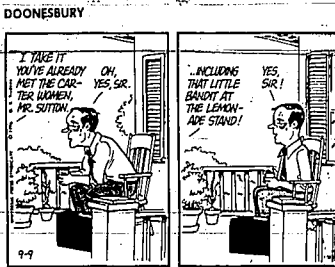

Q: "Rats outnumber people worldwide. Rats eat far more grain than the United States ships abroad. So why doesn't the Government put a bounty on rats?"
A: Most probably because numerous bounty hunters would turn into rat ranchers, raising the little beasts instead of hunting them.

MARTINI
The martini man who wants an olive is inclined to settle for just one drink. The fellow who orders an onion with it generally has at least a couple. And that imbiber who insists on a lemon twist is apt to repeat the performance too many times to count. However, it is said, a bartender of lengthy experience.

Who remembers when Adolf Hitler decreed that it would be against the law in Germany for any parents there to give a baby girl the name of Pamela or a baby boy the name of Michael? No, he didn't specify these particular monikers. He simply outlawed all non-germanic first names.

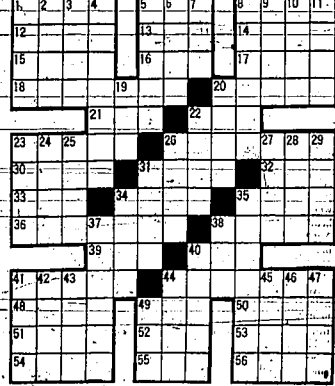

If you want to make a lot of money, young fellow, shoot for a top job in the whiskey industry, the soap business or the lipstick trade. Executives therein as a group are said to be the most highly paid in the nation.

Salmon fishermen ignore warnings, eat fish anyway

POKESKI, N.Y. — Thousands of salmon — many of them believed to be seriously contaminated by mirex, PCBs and other toxic chemical compounds — have begun to leave Lake Ontario to begin their annual spawning run in the rivers and streams that flow into the lake.

But here on the Salmon River, just a few miles from the lake, the fishermen who stalk the salmon and who try to impale the fish on huge hooks in a sport called "snatching" or "snagging" do not seem terribly concerned.

For them, the sport is the thing and many say they will eat the salmon, even though in some instances the fish may contain chemical levels that exceed several Federal guidelines.

"First we had mercury, then it was PCBs, now it's mirex, and who knows what's next?" said Bob Larison, owner of the busy Silver Saddles Sports Shop in this Oswego County community.

"We eat salmon four times a week," said John Phelps, a guide, "and we probably put 700 pounds in the freezer every year. Everybody in the family eats them and there has been no problem."

The substances in question, which also include Kepone and DDT, tend not to be acutely toxic, at least not when consumed in the levels at which they appear to be present in Lake Ontario fish.

They have caused cancer in experiments with laboratory animals but there are questions as to what they do to humans who ingest them over a period of many years. It is known that the substances tend to store themselves in the fatty tissue of humans and wildlife.

Lake Ontario is the source of the contamination of Lake Ontario and the reasons for it. The New York Times learned that the State Department of Environmental Conservation has been stocking Lake Ontario and Lake Erie with millions of salmon.

The Department also plans to construct a $10 million hatchery for trout and salmon near the lake, although it has been warned that any fish put into the lake might well be contaminated by it.

"We don't have the data we need as yet on salmon," said Dr. Ted Hultar, a departmental deputy commissioner, in a recent interview. He also said that the department had assumed that even if the contamination did not disappear with time, the fish from the new hatchery could be used to replace it.

No formal alert about the mirex situation has been issued to the fishermen by the department.

The agency's public relations office issued a press release last Aug. 10 that noted some changes in fishing regulations on Lake

Ontario "to improve the fishing opportunity for anglers seeking salmon, as they begin their spawning runs."

The release did not mention mirex, although for the last year, the department has received many warnings about contamination from United States and Canadian researchers as well as from its own scientists, most notably Dr. Ware Stone, an associate wildlife pathologist.

Basically, the critics are saying that even if the salmon are not eaten by those who catch them, the poisons they contain may be spread. The chemicals in question are very persistent in the environment and could reappear in the lake, in the earth, or in an animal that eats the salmon.

There is also criticism of another kind — criticism of snagging.

"I find snagging repulsive and those who do it unsportsmanlike," said Jim Sheedy, chairman of the Fish Committee of the New York State Conservation Council, an organization that claims a membership of 350,000, most of them fishermen and hunters.

State regulations allow the fishermen to use a fish hook that is two inches long and weighted with lead, with as many as five treble hooks on a single line. When a fisherman sees a salmon hovering in a pool, he casts, trying to hook any part of it.

"It really doesn't matter," one of them said. "The fish are spawning. They're going to die anyhow."

John N. Hocko, president of Catskill Waters, an influential group of trout fishermen who pride themselves on their Jurens, saw the fishing ritual last weekend and said, "It's barbaric. Why not dynamite them or hit them on the head with a rock?"

Train rams Oregon school bus

LAFAYETTE, Ore. (UPI) — A railroad engine pulling a caboose collided with a school bus today, killing at least two youngsters and injuring scores of others.

Witnesses said the driver of the bus may have been blinded by the morning sun as he drove onto the railroad crossing and did not see the oncoming engine.

Yamhill County Sheriff W. L. Mekkers said first reports indicated between 30 and 35 children, mostly elementary school students, were on the bus. One of the confirmed deaths was that of a 7-year-old boy, but the ages and sexes of the others were not immediately known.

"They're all got some sort of injuries, ranging from real serious to not so serious," Mekkers said. A police officer at the scene described the crash as "the worst school bus accident I've ever seen."

The bus was struck on the right front side and was knocked about 100 yards down the track.

Hospitals in nearby McMinnville and Newberg were filled with the injured students. Some of the youngsters had to be taken to hospitals in Salem and Portland, about 35 miles from the crash site. Passenger cars were pressed into service when not enough ambulances were available to transport the injured.

A spokesman for Southern Pacific railroad said the engineer of the train, which included only one engine and a caboose, reported that the school bus approached the crossing from the engineer's side of the train. The engineer said he saw the sun shining off the side of the bus and theorized that the driver might have been blinded.

The crossing is in a clear area and under normal circumstances visibility extends to about 150 yards.

"The engineer said he had his whistle blowing and headlights on and was traveling at about 25 miles per hour," reported SP spokesman George Krause. "He said he saw the bus pull to a stop and then pull ahead into the path of the train."

The sheriff said both sides of the crossing were marked with stop signs. "We've had fatal accidents there before. They put up stop signs, but I don't know what happened this morning."

The train was reported traveling at about 25 miles per hour at the time of the crash. The crossing is within the Lafayette city limits and the condition of the tracks does not allow trains to travel faster than 30 miles per hour, Mekkers said.

Gooding police chief given five-day leave

GOODING — City Council members of Gooding Tuesday night granted the chief of police a five day leave to go to Washington, D. C., and set a public hearing date for a requested annexation.

With Mayor Don Morrow absent, the meeting was conducted by council president, Robert Moline.

Fred Willard, a Gooding National Guard officer, told the council the guard offers a free trip to Washington, D.C., to the guardsman who brings in the most recruits during each year. Chief of police Dwayne Walker won the award, Willard told the council. Council members granted Walker a leave from Sept. 19 to 23 to make the trip.

Developers of the small Strickland sub-division at the southwest edge of the city requested annexation of their property. Council members set Oct. 12 at 8 p.m. as the time for the public hearing on proposed annexation.

In other business the council approved certification of the tax levies needed to provide funds for the 1977 city budget adopted earlier this year, and approved regular monthly bills.

Sprinkler design contract approved

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls City Council Tuesday night voted 2-2 to approve of a $22,000 contract with U-B-B Engineers, Inc., for the initial design of an automatic sprinkler system for the Twin Falls Municipal Golf Course.

This initial payment would allow the city to decide whether it is worthwhile to continue plans for the sprinkler system, City Manager Jean Millar said.

Mayor Paul Ostyn, who voted against the measure with Councilman Henry Woodall, said he was "definitely against spending so much money just for designing" the project.

Millar said he felt the cost of the sprinkler system would eventually save the city money in labor and the amount of water on the course.

Currently, the city uses a method of "flood irrigating" to water the course grass, he said. The new system would provide "more uniform" watering of the course, he added.

Millar said estimates for the project, including construction have ranged from $100,000 to $200,000 but "nobody really knows" that's just a guess.

and bid the heart slam. If West had opened a diamond South would have been able to ruff two diamonds in dummy. But West made the inspired lead of a trump. This forced South to work a little for his contract, but the slam did come in. South won the heart lead with his eight spot and played a diamond. West won and led a second trump to dummy's jack. South cashed dummy's ace of spades, ruffed a spade, ruffed one diamond with dummy's last trump, ruffed a second spade, pulled West's last trump and claimed since he could enter dummy with the ace of clubs and discard his last two diamonds on the king and eight of spades.

One facet of expert bidding is that they go off their way to show singletons. Thus, when South responded two hearts to the spade opening, North rebid three clubs. This bid, which went by both two spades and two no trump, showed extra values.

After South went to three no trump, North showed his heart support and at the same time told South that he, North, held a singleton diamond.

South revealed his hand, since he held six hearts and no waste value in the diamond suit. He went into Blackwood

Wayne Hays hospitalized after traffic accident

BARNESVILLE, Ohio (UPI) — Former Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, who resigned from Congress in disgrace, is back in Barnesville Hospital for the second time in three months — this time the result of a traffic accident.

Police said a pickup Hays was driving struck another truck Tuesday near Wheeling, W.Va.

A deputy sheriff said the congressman told him he was trying to keep an antique lamp from crashing in the truck when he let the vehicle slip into the wrong lane.

His personal physician said Hays will remain hospitalized two to three days for observation. His condition at Barnesville Hospital was listed as satisfactory.

This was the same hospital where Hays, 65, was taken June 10 suffering from what was described as an accidental overdose of sleeping tablets.

Hays resigned from Congress Sept. 1 amid a scandal which erupted when Elizabeth Ray said a congressman had hired her as a $14,000 a year secretary solely to serve as his mistress.

"It's not serious at all," Dr. Richard Phillips said of Hays' traffic wreck injuries. "He's fine. I just brought him in so I could keep an eye on him for a few days."

Phillips said Hays suffered bruised ribs in the mishap.

Hays refused treatment in Wheeling and insisted he be taken to Barnesville, said Phillips. His wife, Pat, a former aide whom he married in May, was summoned from their Belmont, Ohio, farm to drive the congressman to Ohio.

A new pickup belonging to Hays sustained $1,500 damage in the crash with an eastbound park truck, operated by a man identified as William Bauer, authorities said. Damages to the park truck were estimated at $300.

Hays was driving the truck, which also contained a dog and an antique lamp, when the accident occurred, said Ohio County, W.Va., sheriff's deputies.

"According to Hays," deputy Bob Bell said, "the lamp started to fall on the floor, and he reached to grab it and went left of center and hit the other truck."

No charges were filed. Police early today refused further comment on the incident.

Authorities would not say where Bauer was from, nor could he be reached for comment immediately.

The accident site was about 30 miles from Hays' Ohio home.

Agents may not testify

NEW YORK (UPI) — Some of the dozens of FBI agents ordered by an appeals court to testify about illegal FBI burpings in New York may circumvent that order under an agreement with FBI's parent government agency, the Justice Department.

The U.S. Appeals Court ruled Tuesday that the agents must testify before the grand jury, but a lawyer for some of the agents said hours later, "We have a need for them to appear before the grand jury."

Stephen Horn, a Justice Department lawyer, confirmed the report but indicated the agreement did not include all agents called to testify. "We have worked out an agreement to the extent that certain interviews will obviate the appearance of some FBI agents before the grand jury," he said.

A number of possibilities are under discussion, including the taking of sworn statements from the agents by the Justice Department, said Martin W. Schwartz, who represents 30 FBI agents scheduled to testify in New York City and other cities.

Bartler, the appeals court said it had no jurisdiction over U.S. District Court Judge Henry Weker's refusal last Friday to quash the subpoenas for the agents.

FBI personnel involved contend that the investigation, now 80 days old, has been broadened to include matters of national security. They argue that the grand jurors, who resumed their inquiry Tuesday afternoon, have not received security clearance which would allow them to hear secret information.

"Many, hostile foreign countries" now are involved, lawyers for the agents told a court hearing Friday. The agents, they said, would go to jail before they would break their oaths not to reveal national security information. J. Stanley Pottinger, who heads the Justice Department's Civil Rights Division, told the hearing "we are taking a hard line on domestic violations involving domestic targets and domestic information."

Executive surrenders to police

PARIS (UPI) — French police Wednesday arrested an aircraft executive who they say walked into a Paris bank two months ago, cashed a company check for $1.6 million, stuffed the money into two suitcases and took off for a sunny Greek island.

Hervé de Vathaire, chief accountant of the Dassault aircraft company, flew home from Athens and surrendered immediately to police. The 50-year-old executive, wearing blue jeans and an open-necked sports shirt, was led away from the airport sustained and smiling.

"We were informed early in the day H. de Vathaire wanted to return to France to put himself at the disposal of justice," a police official said. Police announced last Friday that de Vathaire had cashed a check for 1 million francs — about $16 million — last July 6 on the Dassault account in a Banque de Paris branch office.

They said he was last seen in France in the southern town of Digne-les-Bains in the company of a young mercenary soldier and later went to the Greek island of Corfu. According to police reports de Vathaire had employed what his associates said was a dossier on various Dassault transactions. French newspapers speculated he may have planned to try to blackmail the company.
